Deal in sight on loss & damage fund

Broad across-the-board agreement awaits ratification as COP27 goes into overtime to clinch pact

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

A deal to create a fund for compensating poor nations that are victims of climate change, appeared on the horizon at the fag end of the COP27 summit in Egypt that has already gone into overtime.

The agreement would need the approval of about 200 countries taking part at the Sharm-el-Sheikh summit. It would amount to a partial breakthrough as states remained locked over amny other contentious issues.

Reports suggested that the draft was amended to include the European Union's position that only the particularly vulnerable countries be eligible to tap the fund, not those with high oil revenues but classified as developing nations. The indication was to exclude the Gulf nations as beneficiaries.

The potential loss and damage deal is a component of the overall agreement that is still in a flux. "30 years of patience. The day has arrived. It is done. YES a new Fund for responding Loss and Damage in developing countries....This is a unique moment a win for all citizens of the world," Alpha Kaloga, lead negotiator for the Africa Group tweeted.

Reports said that in an attempt to narrow the gap between countries' climate change pledges and the targeted reductions needed to avert the adverse impacts of climate change, the draft text urges states who are yet to upgrade their 2030 emissions cut targets, do so by 2023-end.

The draft, however, did not contain a reference that India and some other negotiators had earlier requested on phasing down use of "all fossil fuels", with the text referring to only phasing down of coal, which had been agreed upon in last year's summit.

Another positive development was the resumption of formal US-China talks after it was suspended following US House Speaker Nancy Pelosi's visit to Taiwan in August. Chinese climate envoy Xie Zhenhua said he had very constructive talks with his US counterpart John Kerry. Both countries are the world's top two polluters as well.

INFANTINO BURST AHEAD OF BIG KICK-OFF

SIDDHANTH ANEY @ Doha

IN the parking lot of Doha's international airport I found myself sucked into a conversation between four friends. They were discussing congestion rules put in place to ease some of the traffic issues that may come up over the course of the next month as over a million football fans descend on the first nation in the MENA region to host a FIFA World Cup. An Egyptian, a Jordanian, a Qatari and an Indian, each had their own understanding of who could drive when and where. "Welcome to Qatar," one of them told me with a smirk, before adding, "Where no one knows what's going on, and everybody is happy."

Everybody, that is, except FIFA boss Gianni Infantino. In an extraordinary monologue that went on for almost an hour Infantino hit out at the hypocrisy of the West. "I'm European," he said. "I think for what we Europeans have been doing for 3,000 years around the world, we should be apologising for the next 3,000 years before starting to give moral lessons to people." It was a clear message to the mostly white-cis-male columnists who have this year developed a remarkable expertise in the conditions of work and life (and death) of the migrant workers, a vast majority of them from South and Sousteast Asia, who have built this city and the world's grandest stage. EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

RENOWNED mathematician Prof Manjul Bhargava said Chanakya University is a step towards India moving towards a multidisciplinary system of education.

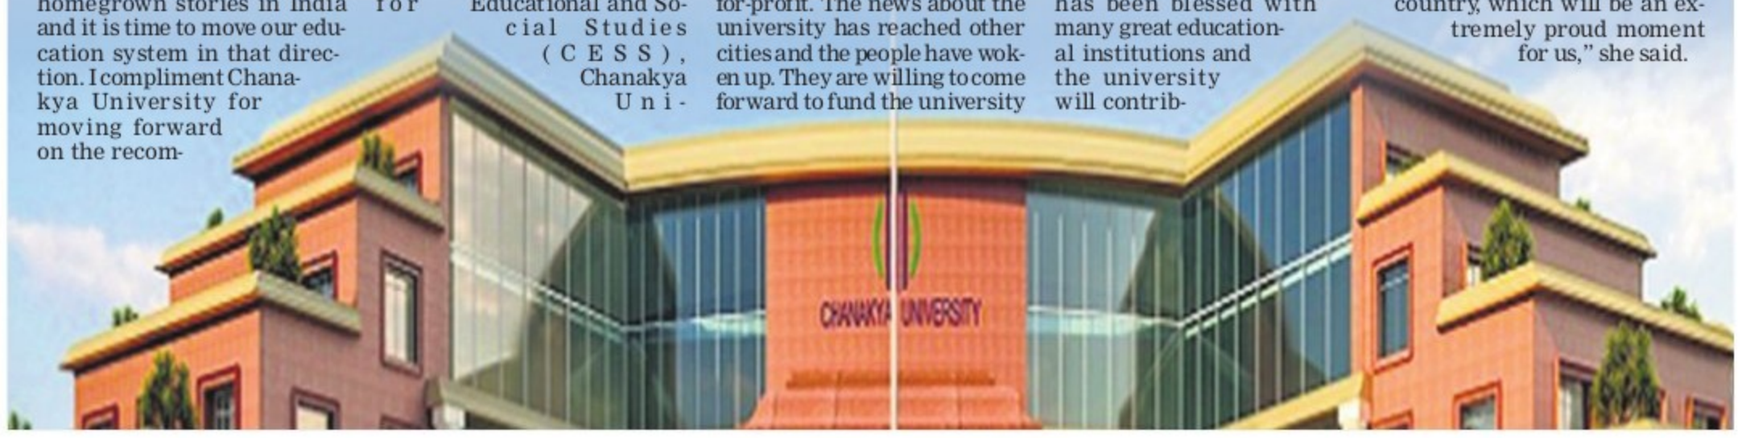
He was speaking at the official launch of Chanakya University as the chief guest on Saturday evening. The event was attended by Minister for Higher Education Dr CN Ashwath Narayan and a number of eminent personalities supporting the university.

Prof Bhargava said, "The Indian numerals were a basis for a lot of modern mathematics used in everyday life and in technology. Without it, the Europeans were still using Roman numerals. The 'zero' is foundational. Its start came from philosophy, then linguistics, then poetry, music, astronomy and, finally, to mathematics and computer science. This shows the importance of multidisciplinary education."

The key method for innovation, he said, is the ability to borrow concepts from other disciplines. "The idea of having a multidisciplinary background and drawing ideas from aesthetics, science and art to work on whatever we're working on, is still applicable today. The best companies hire multidisciplinary teams and people. Many inventors come from a multidisciplinary background. We need more such homegrown stories in India and it is time to move our education system in that direction. I compliment Chanakya University for moving forward on the recommendations of the NEP. I hope it is a model for future new institutions and already established institutions in pursuing multidisciplinary education," he said.

Established by several architects of the National Education Policy under the Centre for Educational and Social Studies (CESS), Chanakya University has the support of many philanthropists and eminent members involved in multidisciplinary settings. "This unique institution is being established by a charitable trust and through funds collected by the public, having no commercial angle and is not-for-profit. The news about the university has reached other cities and the people have woken up. They are willing to come forward to fund the university with an emphasis on quality and value-added education," said Dr Sitharam Jindal, founder chairman and managing director, Jindal Aluminium.

Kiran Mazumdar-Shaw, founder and chairperson of Biocon India, said Bengaluru has been blessed with many great educational institutions and the university will contribute to this. "Knowledge is paramount in terms of economic success. We are adding another great educational institute to the knowledge profile of Bengaluru. This helps in creating Bengaluru as not only a 'Science Capital', but the 'Knowledge Capital' of the country, which will be an extremely proud moment for us," she said.



PROF YASHAVANTHA DONGRE, VICE-CHANCELLOR

'We want to encourage students who come from rural backgrounds'

ANISHA REDDY

With your university's specific focus on NEP 2020, have the teachers been trained?

■ This was our first priority, because what we are trying to do is slightly different. To fall in place with the aspirations of NEP, we thought, first we should have a thorough training of our faculty. We had a 10-day training module for all the faculty once they were on board. In the first three days, the entire staff of the university was part of the training programme because we look at everyone as an educator. We don't distinguish when it comes to teaching or non-teaching staff. After that, they were trained separately based on the skill requirement. For the students too, the first one week was used for preparing them for the new way of learning, when they came on board on August 22. We understand that continuous training exposure for our staff and counselling and guidance for our students is required when you do something different.

How will the university support students financially while securing admission?

■ There are two-three stated objectives for the university. We don't want to be considered simply as an elite university and look only at those kind of students. We want to encourage and accept students who have studied in regional languages and who come from rural backgrounds. We have a mentoring system, both from the faculty and from the industry, for these students. There are varieties of scholarships that will support them. Right now, some 20 students have got 100 percent scholarship – they do not pay any fee or any hostel expenses. It is purely based on their socio-economic background and merit. Other students have received different slabs of freeships and scholarships. For some, only fees are waived off and they meet their living expenses by themselves. We started with the idea of 75 scholarships to celebrate 75 years of Independence but practically all our students have got one or the other benefit - either scholarship or freeship.

How will the values of "Indian knowledge system" be inculcated into your curriculum?

■ We are following different strategies. The Indian knowledge system is too broad an idea. We need to look at specificities. It should not be looked at as if it is simply going back to old traditions. We need it to be useful to address today's problems and challenges. Ideas regarding local culture and practices, lifestyle, and respect for nature can be looked at. We have a high research focus in this area because we don't have ready-made things to be inculcated into the curriculum. We need to cull out elements and pick up those that are relevant for today. We have started doing this wherever possible. It is much easier to integrate in some disciplines like Social Sciences. In Psychology, too, we have a paper on Indian Psychology. We also have a foundation course, titled Indian Intellectual Heritage. There is research work going on with respect to political philosophies while looking at the current international relations dynamics. These are on our research domain and only after research, will they be inculcated into the curriculum. In our eagerness to teach, we should not teach something that is not relevant for today.

With many private universities up and running, how is your campus planning to be different?

■ We are currently on rented premises as the campus is just coming up and we will shift next academic year. During that time, Phase 1A of the campus will be ready that includes all the infrastructure to house 1,500 students and the related faculty.

The plan is that over a period of time, integration of technology will happen in terms of the physical infrastructure. The central focus is on the knowledge centre which is much beyond a library. It is more of a repository. It is not just that students will have access to what is in our centre but we have collaborated and tied up with other organisations in India and abroad to be able to facilitate resources from those centres as well. Such a technology-driven knowledge repository is going to be created. This is a central system as our idea is that resources should be made available to everyone.

In terms of our entire governance and administration too, an IT committee has been put in place right from the beginning, which is planning the digital integration of all our activities in a phased manner. From admission to exit, everything related to students is integrated with technology. Our academic Learning Management System (LMS), assessment and everything related to HR management are all going to be technologically integrated. We want to ensure that technology is an integral part of the whole process. So, our portal is going to be dynamic.

On the study and research front too, we have begun with a technologically integrated programme in our School of Mathematics and Natural Sciences. Our faculty is drawn from renowned institutes. We have a high focus on data science, cybersecurity, and artificial intelligence, like other universities do as well. We have put in place courses and programmes related to all this.

PROF MK SRIDHAR, FOUNDER AND CHANCELLOR, CHANAKYA UNIVERSITY

'TIME HAS COME TO POSITION KNOWLEDGE, CULTURE TO ADDRESS GLOBAL CHALLENGES'

DONNA EVA

What is the idea behind Chanakya University?

■ The process to establish the university had started way back in mid-2020. After that it took its own time for the idea to take shape and preparations to be made. The purpose of the university is to create knowledge and nurture transformative leaders for holistic development. Basically, as a university, we need to focus on knowledge and dissemination through research and other methods. We need to make some kind of original contribution in that area over a period of time. That knowledge must equip the people coming out of the university to be transformative. This is not lopsided, but a holistic development. While talking about this, we have two important contexts. First, what prompted us was that in July 2020, the National Education Policy (NEP) was put forth. We thought that as the idea for the university was brought about, it should represent the vision of the policy. Secondly, we have our own heritage, culture and significant knowledge systems in our country. The time has come for us to position all this knowledge and culture to provide solutions to global challenges.

Many people involved with the university have worked on NEP. Why was the decision taken to establish this as a private university as opposed to a state or central university?

■ This is something we as a sponsoring body thought we must bring in. We have requested and approached many like-minded people who have agreed to make an effort towards establishing the university. Secondly, it is not a private university in the conventional sense. It is a philanthropy-driven private university. So, a lot of people have come to support the university in the last few months alone. They have also agreed to support it in the future. It's a private university rooted in philanthropy.

When do you predict that the university will be completely NEP-compliant?

■ It is a continuous process. The basic principles of NEP must first be brought in, which is the starting point. We have an advantage, because we are starting with a clean slate. You can write and implement NEP on that clean slate. It becomes NEP-integrated from day one, especially with the kind of core structure and framework that we are developing, as well as the choices and flexibility that students will be given. As and when the statutory bodies bring in the necessary changes, we will immediately incorporate them from day one. There are few things that are under the control of the university, which we are doing 100 per cent. But there are also a few things that are not exclusive to our domain. We have to go by the framework of the statutory bodies, like the University Grants Commission (UGC) and others. As and when they are implemented by the bodies, we will implement them immediately. For example, UGC recently came out with its 'professors of practice' guidelines and we have immediately implemented it. We already have three professors of practice at our university. Similarly, with the new PhD regulations. We have already implemented them. The clean slate allows us to make sure that we can implement the NEP-inclined guidelines as given by the statutory bodies immediately. We are preparing the kind of framework, structure and mindset needed for this. The basic impediment in any sort of reform is the mindset. So we have remedied this by already preparing the mindset of the faculty and students, so that changes given by statutory bodies can be implemented without difficulty.

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE

BRUHAT Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike (BBMP) Chief Commissioner Tushar Girinath directed Palike engineers to improve the state of roads, by standardising work, and making it convenient for people. He also warned erring officials.

Following frequent pothole-related incidents in Bengaluru, the BBMP held a workshop for its engineers, themed 'Workshop on construction, maintenance and project management of BBMP urban infrastructure projects', at Town Hall on Saturday, which was attended by BBMP Administrator Rakesh Singh, and Special Commissioner, Traffic, MA Saleem, other than Girinath.

"We should improve the way we work on a daily basis," Girinath told the engineers.

Similarly, Singh told engineers to bring respect to the government by properly managing projects. "Engineers are the focal point for projects undertaken by the BBMP and the government. Therefore, construction and maintenance should be taken seriously and implemented," he said.

Saleem said that if the roads are maintained properly, there would be no problem of traffic congestion. "In the city, if the engineers of BBMP, BWSSB and other bodies manage roads properly, there will be no traffic issues," he observed.

A memorial for freedom fighters will be built in Bengaluru, says Bommai

ENS @ Mangaluru

STATING that the true freedom fighters have not got their due in the country, Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai on Saturday announced that a memorial will be built as a tribute to thousands of freedom fighters whose contributions have remained ignored, at a prominent place in Bengaluru.

Speaking after unveiling a bronze statue of freedom fighter Kedambadi Ramayya Gowda at Bavutagudda here, Bommai said Ramayya Gowda is one such freedom fighter who is mostly unknown to people and there are thousands of such freedom fighters who are yet to get due recognition. The memorial in Bengaluru will have names of all such freedom fighters etched on it, he said.

CM Basavaraj Bommai after unveiling a statue of Kedambadi Ramayya Gowda in Mangaluru on Saturday | EXPRESS

Referring to foreign countries like Japan and the US having statues of Subash Chandra Bose and Mahatma Gandhi, respectively, the CM regretted that India took years to recognise many of its own freedom fighters. "There is need for such recognition as it not only highlights the country's history, but also its identity," he said.

Further, the CM said that a memorial of Ramayya Gowda will also come up in Bengaluru and his lessons will be included in school textbooks.

Meanwhile, Congress leader U T Khader's speech at the event left the CM and other BJP leaders red-faced. Apparently referring to the presence of religious and political leaders of the Vokkaliga community there, Khader said freedom fighters should not be treated on the basis of their caste. In reply, Bommai said that Khader should have actually made that speech in the Legislative Assembly.

Railway minister bats for Mumbai rail system for city

Wants Whitefield-Cantonment quadrupling project expedited

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

Railway Minister Ashwini Vaishnaw on Saturday urged the South Western Railway Zone to take steps to create a Mumbai Suburban Rail-like system in Bengaluru on priority. He was keen that it be put in place before 2024, said sources privy to different meetings the minister held in the city on Saturday.

The quadrupling project between Whitefield and Cantonment that is on now will allow more trains to be run in the city and on the outskirts. "The minister wanted the project speeded up so that it is ready by December 2023 and feasibility studies taken up along high-density corridors in the city for doubling, tripling or quadrupling projects to facilitate running of local trains. He was keen that it should be done before 2024," said a senior official.

The minister was not pleased with the slow progress of the Bengaluru Suburban Rail Project (BRSB) and expressed apprehension whether the Karnataka Rail Infrastructure Development Enterprises (K-RIDE), a joint venture between the state and Railways, is equipped to handle the project, another official said. Tenders have been finalised for just one out of four proposed corridors (Baiyappanahalli to Chikkabanavar) and there is no sign of BRSB fully materialising any time in future. K-RIDE has hardly made any progress in the last 3.5 years.

The crucial doubling projects handed over to K-RIDE by the constructions division of South Western Railway too has not made much progress and there were talks of them being handed back to the Railways. These are Yesvantpur-Channasandra and the Baiyappanahalli-Hosur projects.

Earlier, Vaishnaw visited the KIA halt station and directed officials to take up doubling and auto-signalling along the Yelahanka-Devanahalli section to boost the capacity of the line to run more trains along with a crossing station at Doddajala. Transportation expert Sanjeev Dyamannavar explained to the minister the impact the automatic signalling could have on the section.

"A project was sent to the Railway Board in 2019 but was rejected and a second one was sent six months ago," he told Vaishnaw. "Trains need not wait for clearance from railway officials as it will be fully automated," he told The New Sunday Express.

Doubling between Hubballi and Bengaluru would be completed soon to facilitate running of Vande Bharat Express by March 2023, Vaishnaw said.

Only 'pre-paid' bribe an offence under graft law, rules K'taka HC

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

The Karnataka High Court has quashed criminal proceedings against P Manjunath, incharge Sub-Registrar at Hosadurga, initiated by the Anti Corruption Bureau (ACB) under the Prevention of Corruption Act.

The order comes two months after the alleged demand of bribe for registration of a deed was made.

Justice M Nagaprasanna pointed out that there is only a 'pre-paid' concept under Section 7 of the Prevention of Corruption Act to lay a trap to catch accused officials for demanding and accepting bribe before the work is done, but no post-paid rule under the said provision exists for work already done.

Petitioner Manjunath registered a mortgage deed on February 24, 2022 and the document was released on the same day.

The complaint was made 14 days after the release of the document. When no work was pending with the petitioner, the first trap was laid on March 2, 2022, but it was unsuccessful. A second trap was laid by the ACB after two months of registration of the document by placing Rs 4,000 on the table of the petitioner when he was not in the office on that day.

Advocate K Satish, the counsel appearing for the petitioner, contended that the first round of trap failed and so did the second trap. There is neither demand nor acceptance of bribe, he argued.

A conman, masquerading as a technician of a leading appliances company, was arrested by the North East CEN police on Tuesday, for making people pay him online for repair of appliances.

The A 25-year-old accused Abdul Subaan, a resident of Old Gurappanapalya, had posted a fake profile on social media, where he mentioned his contact details.

When someone would contact him for repair, he would ask the person to share photos of the damaged parts of the appliances, for which he would quote an amount. The customer will be asked to pay online.

After he would receive the payment, he blocked the customer.

If the customer refused to pay him online, he used to visit the house. After checking the appliance, he would ask the customer to pay him to buy the parts which apparently needed replacement. He will flee after collecting the money.

The police have recovered two mobile phones and four SIM cards from him.

The accused has been booked under the IT Act, IPC 419 (cheating by personation) and 420 (cheating).

Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai on Saturday said he will meet Union Minister for Road Transport and Highways Nitin Gadkari next week in order to discuss various short term and long term highway projects in the state

'WE ARE NOW USING TECH BENEFICIAL FOR CITIZENS & POLICING'

EXPRESS Dialogues

FROM Bengaluru traffic to drugs to technology and cybercrimes, Karnataka's state police chief, Director General & Inspector General of Police, Praveen Sood, visited the The New Sunday Express office and interacted with the editors and staff. In an informal but involved interaction, Sood spoke of the importance of technology, issues related to crime and solving crimes, and being alert in evading cyber crime attacks using various methods. Excerpts:

What is the significance of posting a special commissioner for traffic in Bengaluru?
Traffic is the baby of multiple civic agencies, but it's the police who have to manage it. Posting a special commissioner of the rank of ADGP was the idea of the chief minister, who wants to see changes. The officer is here to expedite that change and make it happen faster, but there are serious coordination issues. Other agencies have to do a lot. We need more infrastructure. We need a longer Metro. We need better routes. We need good roads. And we need a very robust parking infrastructure which is missing in the city. We are bringing in technology for automation and enforcement. Posting a special commissioner and also a joint commissioner is to bring a mix of experience and youth to tackle this change.

The police are catching motorists, and there are allegations of harassment ...
Nowhere in the world do policemen monitor a traffic signal. But we expect traffic policemen to stand at the signal and stop them physically. Red means stop, whether a policeman is standing there or not. But, I have issued orders not to stop vehicles just to check documents, as it may be harassment for motorists who have all valid documents. Such small things damage the reputation of the police.

How has technology been beneficial to both the public and police?
It's changed a lot, especially in the last 4-5 years. We have leveraged technology in a big way. We have introduced citizen-centric technology. People should not be made to come to the police station to do routine work which can be done without going there. We have made police verification and police reports on lost articles/documents completely online. Recently, we introduced a system where people can file a complaint for stolen/lost vehicles and get the FIR copy for insurance. These initiatives have saved a lot of time both for the public and also the police. In future, we will bring in a system where we can even submit a chargesheet to the court online.

What measures have been put in place to keep the recruitment process clean in the wake of the scam in the recent PSI recruitment?
We have learnt a lesson. In 2002, Karnataka was the first to start the most transparent and objective recruitment system and for 10-15 years, it was only improving because there was zero human intervention because of technology. Technology is as efficient and honest as the person sitting on it. If the custodian of technology gets compromised, then no technology can help and this is where we failed. So, we have set that right and we will be more careful in future. The good thing is we have the lowest number of vacancies. It's about 12% of which 7% is advertised and at the end of this recruitment, we will have a vacancy of about 5%, that is about 5,000 people. I have been seeing it for 20 years and never the vacancy position has gone below 25,000.

Since we were talking about technology, and we are in the cyber capital, how well-trained is our police force to address challenges posed by cyber crimes?

We have nine cyber crime police stations in Bengaluru, one in CID and one each in every district. No other state has so many cyber crime police stations

Cyber crime is not a new challenge for Bengaluru, but you can never be fully good because every day a new method of cyber crime develops. People, who are PhDs, are developing new modus operandi every day. So we are equipped but we are always behind because new things keep coming. Secondly, the volume is increasing. We have nine cyber crime police stations in Bengaluru, one in CID and one each in every district. No other state in the country has so many cybercrime police stations. But, no one can be ever fully-equipped because this is a work in progress. We also keep sensitising people. The best solution or the long-lasting solution is more awareness. Why do people fall prey to cybercrime? Two reasons: One is ignorance; the second, which you will not like to hear, nine out of 10 cyber crimes happen because of greed. Why would anyone give you a free holiday or send a courier that you have not even ordered? How will you win a lottery when you haven't purchased one? And that modus operandi to tap greed is changing every day. So all we need is to learn.

But one area where we have become leaders in this country is forensic science. We were in an age when we had one big forensic lab in Bengaluru and a few regional labs outside. The waiting period for getting an FSL report for DNA and cybercrime etc, was three years and other results required six months. Today, it's one month for all other cases and that three years has come down to 6-12 months. We have invested in three areas of forensic science, and one is manpower. We had about 60-70 scientific officers and today we are 300, who are civilians. We have created something which is a first in the country, called Scene of Crime Officers (SOCOs), who play a crucial role in crime investigation. They are trained at the National Forensic Sciences University (NFSU), Gandhinagar (Gujarat). Also, we have spent roughly Rs 70 crore in the last two years on high-tech equipment. In the next one month, I'm going to issue an order that every scene of a heinous crime, which is punishable with seven years and more, should be visited mandatorily by SOCOs so our investigation migrates to investigation rather than getting witness statements. Trials take years, and while witnesses may go hostile, scientific evidence never goes hostile. We were able to submit chargesheets in two rape-and-murder cases involving children, in nine days in one and 14 in the other because of these changes. In 10-20 years, 30% of the people who will do police investigations will be civilians. So we need to create more students coming to forensic science and for that NFSU has offered to open their campus in Karnataka.

There's a lot of research done in theoretical sciences and mathematics around crime. How helpful is that?
It is extremely helpful because problems are too many and resources are limited. Today, thanks to technology, every crime gets plotted, with latitude and longitude and actually, you can see which areas you have problems with. These are called predictive policing models that can help you in planning your policing and optimising your resources which are scarce. There is a technology with us where you can correlate phone calls to 112 with crime prone locations. Now, you will say where do you use that? We use them for placing Hoysala vehicles strategically to reduce our response time.

Today, thanks to technology, every crime gets plotted, with latitude and longitude and actually, you can see which areas you have problems with

Tell us about one aspect which you really want to focus on ...
We need to create a lot of infrastructure. It's easy for me to order that all policemen must be very nice to people when they come to the station, but he also has a right to ask me about the condition of places where they work and live. A policeman today is unfortunately or fortunately overqualified and we expect them to be experts in investigating terrorism, and cybercrimes and tell you should be nice to people. He also expects us to give him a good police station to work in. Some stations are really bad and it's inhuman to ask anyone to work there. We are working on it and creating better workplaces for the police, which not only policemen will be proud of, but citizens entering these buildings will have some confidence. Earlier, there was no provision for separate washrooms for women in stations. Now, all stations will have them. Housing facilities for our staff also need to improve, and we are constructing 10,000 houses.

How big are the challenges posed by the drug menace and the dark web?
It's a very big challenge, as big as cybercrime, because the methods have changed. Earlier people would order through SMS or WhatsApp or telephone calls. Now no one uses them. They will either use social media with code words or the dark web, which we have been able to penetrate. But have we penetrated the whole thing? No. So it's a big challenge. Again, technology matters here. We are equipped today for testing (narcotics) quickly which used to take three years earlier. But are we catching everyone? No, to be truthful. There will be much more than we are catching. And, it's an endless fight. In cyber and drugs, people will invent new ways of indulging in them and we have to keep updating ourselves. But it is a mess.

How difficult is the life of a policeman in the times of social media?
Extremely difficult. Social media is akin to a platform where people can abuse and scoot. When I joined the service, no one used to get hurt so easily but now everyone gets hurt. And when they get hurt, they run to the police stations and the courts. So life has become very, very difficult. Let us accept that if you are on social media, you will also learn to live with all that garbage which exists in social media. There is fake news, dedicated wrong news, motivated news, character-insinuating news and all those things. To presume that police will be active on everything that is on social media is difficult. It's not practical. Yes, we do take action when there is a threat to national security or safety, or it's a law and order situation. But we need to tread cautiously on things that are on social media, where most things are untrue.

Whenever there is an incident, then we talk about intelligence gathering and also there was a proposal to recruit exclusively for the intelligence wing. How is it going?
It's excellent and this experiment has succeeded not only in intelligence but in CID too. The idea was these specialised organisations like CID and Intelligence have to be a mix of experience and continuity. So, some officers come for a year or two and go back to the field, but there have to be some officers who are there for 35 years. So, we have some detective sub-inspectors in CID who will become detective inspectors and detective SPs, who stay there all their life while others come and go. Similarly, in Intelligence, we have officers who are recruited as intelligence officers who stay for 35 years and others come and go. This is exactly what happens in the Intelligence Bureau or CBI. It has proven to be very successful.

What are the challenges in the upcoming Assembly elections considering the developments in the state?
We are geared up. As I said, the biggest challenge is social media. We are geared up to handle the things on the field, we are trained to handle that, but now most of the war happens on social media. I won't say we are not geared to handle that, but to what extent can you go? Can you dedicate all your resources to what A said to B and B said to A? It's like losing the woods for the trees. We are geared up but the challenges are very big.

After so many years of serving, do you think people are interested in joining the police force?
Historically, policing has never been the first career choice for most. But things are changing. I will give you an example. We have advertised for 4,000-plus Armed Police Constable posts and we have received over three lakh applications. It's still not closed. So a large number of people want to join the police force, but a lot of them leave when they get a school teacher's job. They prefer to go as a school teacher or as a clerk because of the holidays and the leisure time. Police jobs at every level are very challenging and demanding. But at a higher level, it has become a more sought-after profession. The heartening thing is more and more women are joining. Today, 25% of the IPS trainees are women, but when I joined there were only two out of 110. The same is happening in the state at the middle and lower level. Now, it is open for transgenders too and we have tried to make it neutral.

Whatever people may say about the police, I know that the kind of good things an average policeman does in his lifetime is unimaginable

What about you? Did you always want to be in the police?
I'm an accidental police officer. I did not know what IPS was before I joined. When we were children, we are vintage models now, there was no career guidance. The parents knew only two things, doctor or engineer. Otherwise, you're useless. So I thought I would become a doctor but went to engineering and did it. And then somebody said there is something called civil services. I appeared and I got selected. But no regrets, neither joining the police nor coming to Karnataka, because whatever people may say about the police, I know that the kind of good things an average policeman does in his lifetime is unimaginable. The only thing is people or the media don't talk about them. They only talk when policemen fail. They don't talk when policemen do thousands of good things. So having known that, no regret that I joined the police force.

CM: Cong gave voter list work to Chilume in 2017

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

CHIEF Minister Basavaraj Bommai on Saturday rubbished opposition Congress' allegations about tampering with voters' data and clarified that the NGO Chilume was not given any work related to voter list revision.

In a point-by-point rebuttal to Congress's allegations, he said voter names were deleted after taking into consideration Photo Similar Entries (PSE) data provided by the Election Commission of India, applications received and the report given by officials after door-to-door visits.

In 2017, the then Siddaramaiah government had illegally given Chilume the responsibility of carrying out voter revision work and in some cases also filling up BLOs, he stated. They are blaming the government for illegalities committed when they were in power, the CM said, responding to the Congress allegations that Chilume was used to delete Congress voters' names.

On the allegation that the BJP government had given permission to Chilume, Bommai said it was first introduced to the pre-election process during the Congress government when Siddaramaiah was CM.

Though the voter list revision is purely the work to be undertaken by government authorities, Chilume was given the responsibility illegally by the Congress government. On September 15, 2017, the KR Puram tahsildar gave permission to Chilume to fill up BLOs for voter revision work. Chilume was also illegally empowered to carry out the revision of the voter list under the jurisdiction of BBMP when Congress was in power, he said.

On the allegation that constituencies of Congress MLAs were targeted, he said it is a pure lie. Out of the 28 constituencies in BBMP limits, of the five constituencies in which the least number of voters were dropped, three are held by Congress.

The CM also rubbished the allegation that the verification of voter list is given to a private institution. In 2017-18 during the then Congress government, Chilume was given the work and it is proved by the documents.

Meanwhile in Mangaluru, Higher Education Minister Dr C N Ashwath Narayan said he did not avail of any services from the Chilume Educational and Rural Development Trust.

Electoral officer sends Cong letter to ECI

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

The State Election Commission forwarded the Congress party's memorandum seeking a judicial probe into the alleged tampering and stealing of voter data to the Election Commission of India (ECI) on Saturday after a delegation from the opposition party met the chief electoral officer.

"We have forwarded the memorandum submitted by them (Congress) to ECI as it was addressed to them," said Chief Electoral Officer(CEO) Manoj Kumar Meena. In the meantime, the Regional Commissioner, Bengaluru has started the probe, he added.

"We asked the CEO whether he could order a judicial probe into the scam, and he said he will come back to us after consulting ECI. If the state election commission doesn't respond to our demand adequately, we will approach ECI," Congress Legislature Party (CLP) leader Siddararamaiah said.

"Apprehensive of losing the 2023 polls, BJP is involved in tampering with the voter data. In spite of this, we will romp home after the polls. But for the people to have faith in the system and election commission, those involved in the scam should get exposed," he said.

A delegation of Siddararamaiah, AICC General Secretary Randeep Singh Surjewala and KPCC president DK Shivakumar met the CEO earlier in the morning. They demanded filing of an FIR against the Bengaluru district returning officer and concerned returning officers of Assembly constituencies in the BBMP jurisdiction on criminal charges as they have allegedly issued Booth Level Officers' (BLOs) identity cards to those employed on contract by the NGO Chilume that allegedly collected the data of over one crore electorates.

Two accused sent to 8-day police custody

"BOTH the directors are relatives and had set up the Chilume Trust in 2015. The directors allegedly took the digital video recorder (DVR) and other documents with them and fled," said a police official. Shruthi, who has a three-month-old baby, was taken to a farmhouse at T Begur near Nelamangala for 'mahazar' as the directors had allegedly taken the documents to the farmhouse.

Meanwhile, the 37th ACMM Court in Bengaluru remanded two accused -- Dharmesh and Renuka Prasad -- in 8-day police custody on Saturday. As the raids were underway, BBMP Special Commissioner (Administration) S Rangappa said another accused, Lokesh, is absconding.

WORLD CHILDREN'S DAY

Post-pandemic, child labour cases increasing

ASHWINI M SRIPAD @ Bengaluru

AS the World Children's Day, with the theme "Inclusion, for every child', is observed on Sunday, thousands of children in Karnataka have been left out of the mainstream. Data shows that child labour cases in the state are on the rise post-pandemic, but still there is no system in place to get them back to classrooms.

The Labour Department rescued 172 child labourers in 2020, 315 in 2021 and 395 this year in the last nine months. But the labour department pointed out that officials from other departments, including women and child welfare, Rural Development and Panchayat Raj, police, education, social welfare and many others, are not interested in this mission. A Labour Department official said child labour is not limited to one department. "But officials from other departments have other priorities and do not take this issue seriously," said the official.

Explaining the reason behind the rise in child labour cases, the official said that during Covid, especially when there were lockdowns, commercial activities had stopped and many industries did not have a chance to employ children. Now that the economy has opened up, child labour cases are going up.

Vasudeva Sharma, State Convenor, Karnataka Child Rights Observatory (KCRO), said there is a connection between post-lockdown and rise in child labour cases. "It could be because post-Covid, adults may not be getting wages they used to earn and they may be sending their children to work. Also, migrants, who have come back to work, could be sending their children to work," he added.

HC TELLS SIT NOT TO ARREST BL SANTHOSH

Advocates say he ordered poaching while sitting in the BJP HQ

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Hyderabad

WHILE declining to halt the investigation into the Telangana Rashtra Samithi (TRS) MLAs poaching case, the Telangana High Court on Saturday directed the Special Investigation Team (SIT) to not arrest BL Santhosh, national general secretary of the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP), and Karimnagar-based attorney B Srinivas till further others were issues. However, both of them were instructed to cooperate with the probe.

Gujjula Premendar Reddy, BJP's State general secretary, had submitted an Interlocutory Application (IA) seeking directions to stay the notices issued by the SIT. While rejecting the plea, Justice B Vijaysen Reddy said that BL Santhosh should not be detained until further directions are issued by the court.

He also heard a second individual writ petition filed by Srinivas, who is reportedly a close associate of BJP State president Bandi Sanjay Kumar, seeking a stay of proceedings under Section 41 A of the Civil Procedure Code. Justice Vijaysen ordered that Srinivas not be arrested as well.

Both BL Santosh and Srinivas, however, will appear before the SIT. After hearing the arguments of both sides, the case was adjourned to November 22.

'Send details to CP Delhi'

Justice Vijaysen also asked for another IA to be filed by the Principal Secretary Home Department, Telangana State, seeking a direction to the Commissioner of Police (CP), Delhi, not to create obstacles in the probe into the case.

The court ordered the SIT to send the notice intended for BL Santosh to CP Delhi, his WhatsApp contact number and e-mail address to him personally. BL Santosh will be served with notifications under Section 41 A of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, by CP Delhi, the judge added.

'SIT has key proof against Santhosh'

While giving reasons to support his arrest, J Ramchander Rao, Telangana Additional Advocate General (AAG), representing the State, and BS Prasad, Advocate General (AG), said the SIT has crucial evidence against Santosh, who while sitting at the BJP headquarters in New Delhi, gave orders to one Hariram Swamy orders from Haridwar to poach TRS MLAs into the saffron party, in a bid to overthrow the State government. However, the judge noted that the notice is issued when an arrest is not necessary.

Following his observations, Prasad said that despite Santhosh being asked to appear before the SIT, the BJP functionary wasn't cooperating with the sleuths and not appearing for questioning even though he hasn't been booked under any sections. Referring to the WhatsApp chats revealed during the probe, Ramchander Rao said that Santhosh had the approval of 25 TRS MLAs who were prepared to join the BJP. His other messages showed that he was trying to lure TRS MLAs and undermine the pink party in the State, the AAG said, adding that the seized items are 'damning evidence' towards the involvement of Santhosh in the attempt.

Santhosh, who has been camping in New Delhi, should question the Telangana unit of BJP if he feels that the notice was issued erroneously.

Appearing on behalf of Premendar Reddy, attorney Vaidyanathan Chitambaresh, informed the court that the SIT had blatantly disregarded the Chief Justice's orders in the writ appeal which stipulated that no information regarding the investigation be made public. Instead of reporting the progress of the investigation to the single judge, the SIT had instead made the information public, he added.

Santhosh's capture and detention by the SIT would have political repercussions across the country and would spark unrest in State's politics, Chitambaresh mentioned.

Dalit woman drinks water from tank, villagers clean it with gomutra

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Mysuru

IN a reprehensible incident, a few villagers belonging to an upper caste drained drinking water from a mini-tank in Heggotara village in Chamarajanagar taluk and cleaned it with gomutra after a Dalit woman drank water from the tank.

The incident came to light after a villager uploaded a video of other residents opening taps and draining water from the tank.

After the video went viral, taluk administration officials visited the spot, collected details and submitted a report to the tahsildar.

The incident occurred during a wedding of Dalits at the village on Friday. The bride's relatives from Sargur in HD Kote taluk had arrived at the village for the ceremony. After consuming food, they were walking towards the bus stand when one of the women drank water from the tank on Lingayat Beedhi. A man from the area called others and they all berated the woman for sullying the water in the tank.

After the woman left the village, the residents of Lingayat Beedhi opened the taps of the tank, released all the water and cleaned it with gomutra.

The village accountant and revenue inspector visited the village on Saturday and received a complaint from the SC youth.

Chamarajanagar Tahsildar IE Basavaraj said he has collected details from officers and directed the social welfare department assistant director to conduct a probe and submit a report. Action will be taken against the guilty, he added.

Chill sets in, Bagalkote shivers at 9.8°C

ENS @ Bengaluru

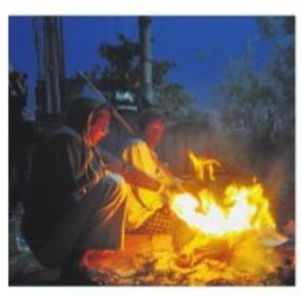
WITH the chill setting in most parts of Karnataka, and many districts recording the mercury below 10 degrees Celsius, officials from the India Meteorological Department cautioned that temperatures will slide further.

IMD data showed that five districts recorded around 11 degrees Celsius minimum temperature while Bagalkote is shivering at 9.8 degrees Celsius (minimum temperature) on Saturday morning. Chikkanahalli and Madikeri's minimum temperatures were recorded at 11.3 degrees Celsius. Chintamani recorded 11.8, Vijayapura 11.5 and Gadag 11 degrees Celsius.

On till November 17, Bidar had recorded 10.7 degrees Celsius, Vijayapura 10.5, Bagalkote 10.2 and Gadag 11.6.

IMD Bengaluru officials said that this is the pre-winter season and the northeast monsoon is at its peak. Citizens are feeling the chill because of the northerly winds blowing, lack of cloud cover and diurnal variation effect.

The officials also forecast light to moderate rainfall over parts of South Interior Karnataka on November 23, due to the formation of depression.



Maha panel meet on Nov 21 over boundary row before SC hearing

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Mumbai/Belagavi

WITH the Karnataka government set to strengthen their case over the boundary dispute against Maharashtra in the Supreme Court, the Maharashtra government has decided to convene a meeting of its reconstituted 14-member high-powered committee on November 21 at Sahyadri Guest House in Mumbai in view of the apex court hearing on November 23.

The panel will be headed by Maharashtra Chief Minister Eknath Shinde, with Union Minister Narayan Rane, Maharashtra Deputy Chief Minister Devendra Fadnavis, NCP president Sharad Pawar, former Chief Minister Prithviraj Chavan, leaders of opposition Ajit Pawar and Ambadas Danve, and other cabinet ministers as members.

The Maharashtra government demands the merger of 865 villages on the border shared by both the states. Recently, a delegation of Maharashtra Ekikaran Samiti (MES) had appealed to Shinde to hold a meeting in connection with the dispute. The Maharashtra government has already rejected the recommendations made by the Mahajan Commission.

'Karnataka unprepared'

With the Maharashtra government designing strategies to fight the case, the Karnataka government is yet to hold a meeting regarding the dispute in the recent months. "The Border Protection Commission of Karnataka is defunct after the demise of its chairperson Justice KL Manjunath, six month ago. The state neither has a minister for the boundary dispute nor a high-powered committee to look into the dispute," says an expert. The state government claimed it had already instructed Advocate General Prabhuling Navadgi to look into the case, sources said.

'Don't let SC admit case'

The Karnataka government plans to contend that the boundary dispute case does not come under the purview of the SC, by which the government should ensure that the Maharashtra's petition is not "admitted in the Supreme Court", say sources.

DROP CHARGES OR FACE PROTEST: TN DOCTORS FORUM TO STALIN

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Chennai

TAMIL Nadu Government Doctors Association on Saturday urged state Chief Minister MK Stalin to drop criminal proceedings against the physicians accused of negligence in the death of 17-year-old footballer Priya.

Adopting a resolution to conduct a statewide protest if the doctors are arrested, the members released a statement, citing the Supreme Court guidelines related to medical negligence, which reads, "Criminal action under section 304 (A) of the IPC should be taken up against the doctors only if the medical experts pointed out criminal negligence in their investigation, and they should be refrained from arrest even in that case. However, the expert committee has observed civil negligence in its report. It is disappointing that the Tamil Nadu police have ignored the SC guidelines and searched them like criminal accused."

They have urged that the CM orders departmental action and drop charges under IPC section 304 (A), while expressing displeasure over the Madras High Court denying them bail.

The Peravallur police have registered a case under against five including two doctors for alleged negligence that resulted in the death of Priya at the Rajiv Gandhi Government General Hospital on November 15.

Medicos want experts to probe Priya death

Tiruchy : Claiming that defaming or taking police action against doctors is extrajudicial, Doctors Association for Social Equality said the recent death of sportswoman Priya should be investigated by an expert committee comprising AIIMS and JIPMER doctors. Addressing newspersons here in the backdrop the Tamil Nadu government announcing special teams, the general secretary of the association, GR Ravindranath, said the state government should stop its efforts to arrest the doctors. "Many Supreme Court judgments have clearly said only after a doctor can be arrested for medical negligence only after a judicial enquiry," he said. Ravindranath said the country is far behind the standard set by WHO in terms of medical infrastructure.

15 days on, Brindavan Gardens shut to trap leopard

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Mysuru

EVEN after trying for 15 days, the leopard, which was found prowling the the Brindavan Gardens at KRS Dam on Friday, is still on the run.

The leopard had eluded various trapping tactics put up by the forest department. On Friday night, the leopard had reappeared at Brindavan Gardens to hunt a porcupine.

The video of the leopard trying to hunt a porcupine was captured by the CCTV cameras installed at various locations to track the movement of the leopard. The movement of the leopard in the vicinity had forced the Cauvery Neeravari Nigam Limited (CNNL) authorities to ban entry of tourists to Brindavan Gardens over the last 15 days.

The CNNL and the forest department officers had jointly taken up the operation to capture the leopard by using drones to track the leopard. They had also laid eight trap cages at various spots with live bait, anticipating that the leopard would come there. The departments had also installed camera traps to capture the movement of the leopard.

On Friday night, the CCTV cameras captured the leopard reappearing in the gardens trying to attack a porcupine. The incident happened near one of the trap cages laid by the foresters. The leopard, instead of killing the live bait inside the cage, was found trying to hunt the porcupine. While the foresters led by RFO Anitha intensified the combing operation at the area, the vendors at the Brindavan Gardens were miffed as closing down for tourists had incurred huge losses for them.

URBAN INDIA TRAPPED IN SYSTEMIC SLOTH

THE THIRD EYE

SHANKKAR AIYAR

shankkar.aiyar@gmail.com

OBITUARIES of cities are a constant in India's urban landscape. Every few years cities are declared dying or dead. The sentiments reflect the spectre of a tense future for urban India. The year is split into seasons of crises. Cities gasp during the winter due to air pollution. Summers are heralded by water scarcity and monsoon arrives with live telecast of floods in cities. And potholes bridge the weeks between monsoon and winter.

Every 'seasonal crisis' is followed by a parade of alibis. Air pollution in the National Capital Region, for instance, is blamed on stubble burning. When a partial drought results in a shortage of drinking water in Pune or Mumbai, the fault lies with the rising numbers of migrants. Floods, like the one seen in Bengaluru, are described as 'extreme weather events' and blamed on that global phenomenon called climate change.

Typically in the Indian context, the political rhetoric converges on centre-state blame games and failures in governance are presented as a function of poor allocations. Earlier this week, the World Bank released a report on what needs to be done and what it would cost.

The 78-page report, dotted with data and prescriptions, says, "India will need to invest $840 billion over the next 15 years—or an average of $55 billion per annum—into urban infrastructure if it is to effectively meet the needs of its fast-growing urban population."

There is no disputing that urban development needs higher allocations—it is manifest in the ratio of allocations in the states and the Centre. The chaotic state of urbanisation, where habitations mushroom without infrastructure, though, is not the outcome of just poor funding. The translation of allocations into outcomes rests on the architecture of governance. The current state of sub-optimal outcomes stems from political and administrative fault lines.

The Constitution of India states that urban development is a state subject – and governments state this in Parliament with uncommon religiosity. That said, the biggest programmes and allocations for urban development emanate from the Union Government. The 74th Amendment to the Constitution promised the transfer of funds and functions from the Centre and states to local governments. In over a quarter of a century, the promise has been waylaid by politics. As the late Vilasrao Deshmukh once said, the states do to local governments what the Centre does to states.

The divorce of authority and accountability has left urban India trapped in a systemic dystopia. Every five years, citizens of Mumbai vote to elect councillors in municipal elections. The Brihanmumbai Municipal Corporation of Mumbai is the largest and richest municipal body with a budget of over ₹45,000 crore. How empowered is the body? The budget is presented by appointed officials. The 227 elected corporators can scarcely define how the money is spent.

The overarching power of allocations remains colonial and lies with the state government under the regional town planning act – and this is true for municipal corporations in many states. Indeed, the latest RBI report on municipal finances reveals there was "no distinct rise in overall municipal revenue in India, which remained broadly unchanged from 1946-47." Much depends on the munificence of states and the Centre.

There has been no dearth of grand announcements. The UPA government came up with the Jawaharlal Nehru Urban Renewal Mission in 2005. The CAG Audit informs how that movie played out. The 2014 manifesto of the BJP promised the creation of 100 new cities. What was a smart futuristic idea morphed into a 'smart city' programme for 100 cities. How has it panned out? In seven years, 100 cities received ₹30,751.41 crore, out of which ₹27,610.34 crore was spent. Of the 7822 projects worth ₹1.90 lakh crore, the cities tendered out only 4085 projects worth ₹66,912 crore have been completed. Cities lack funding and the capacity to execute.

Definitions matter, for they define outcomes. There are towns and cities, and then there are Census Towns – areas with a minimum population of 5000 which fall between rural and urban definitions. In 2001 India had 1362 Census Towns. The 2011 Census informs that the number of Census Towns has grown to 3892. In 2015, the Urban Development Ministry under Venkaiah Naidu asked states to convert the Census Towns into urban local bodies. In 2022 the Census Towns illuminate systemic sloth and remain a symbol of unplanned urbanisation.

The embedded bias in the political system has rendered urban India a lesser constituency. This is despite the fact that urban India accounts for nearly 480 million or 35 per cent of India's 1.4 billion people. Urban India contributes 60 per cent of India's GDP – and ostensibly the bulk of the average monthly GST collections of ₹1.4 lakh crore.

Urbanisation is a known force multiplier for social development and economic growth. The dividends though will follow only if urban development is enabled. This calls for systemic empowerment of elected urban local bodies, redesign of the architecture to realign authority and accountability and, most importantly, the induction of political ownership of promise and onus of failure.

LEADERS' GIFTS SYMBOLISE HERITAGE, POLITICS

POWER & POLITICS

GIFTS are to foreign leaders what Latin is to a translator. Decipher the syntax and grammar, catch the nuances, and win friends and disarm foes. But watch for the hidden pun. Diplomatic gifts are tokens immortalised by photo-ops for the moment, only to be consigned to toshakhanas as the indifferent booty of conflicts and concessions. Gifts have no ideology, only ideas of grandeur. But of late, the foreign policy tea leaves indicate that the size, shape and source of official presents indicate domestic compulsions, geographic and even electoral moxie.

Last week, Prime Minister Narendra Modi came bearing gifts to the G20 powwow in Bali. Modi has a rep for thinking out of the box. Though there were 19 heavy hitters at the three day summit, only Modi's gifts expectedly made headlines in the Indian media. Prezzies of Joe Biden, Xi Jinping, Rishi Sunak were just editorial spam. Everything Modi does is pregnant with meaning, and Indian babus ensured that their master's voice reached the domestic audience loud and clear because his viswaguru trope is South Block's mandate—vocal for local. Did the maestro of metaphors take his election campaign in Gujarat and Himachal Pradesh to Bali, once an ancient Hindu kingdom where Hindu temples still abound? In June, Modi's gifts to G7 luminaries in Germany were handicrafts from Uttar Pradesh, where he had rowed the party to the shore of a massive victory. The Gulabi Meenakari brooch and cufflinks Biden received came from Varanasi, Modi's constituency. Varanasi was also the subtext of the lacquerware "Ram Durbar" the PM gave his Indonesian counterpart.

Modi's presents smack of nationalism that butts the colonial narrative. They bear his imprimatur: after he won the 2014 election, Modi received the customary congratulatory phone call from Barack Obama, who invited him to Washington. For Modi, it was sweet revenge—he had been denied a US visa previously. The prime minister is an artist of analogy; his gifts to Obama emotionally connected with America's first Black president— digital recordings on the "Visit of Reverend Martin Luther King to India", "Visit of Mrs. Coretta Scott King to Accept Jawaharlal Nehru Award for International Understanding to Reverend Martin Luther King (Posthumously) for the Year 1966 in January 1969", and "The Spirit of Mahatma Gandhi". Mixing Gandhi and Luther was a significant strategy because Luther was inspired by Gandhi and is Obama's icon. But Modi didn't sidestep India's heritage: the Obamas received a copy of the Bhagavad Gita and 'Bhagavad Gita According to Gandhi'. India won the day—later, Obama presented Modi with a rare edition of the World's Congress of Religions in 1893 that featured Swami Vivekananda. Ironically, the present signifies the past. Often leaders choose gifts to remind their guests about their past connections with the host country. Modi presented the late Queen Elizabeth rare photographs of her first visit to India in 1961, Makaibari tea from Darjeeling, organic honey from Jammu and Kashmir and Tanchoi stoles from Varanasi. He has significantly altered the message with his medium of gifts. Not for him the predictably secular and politically correct presents; his goodies promote India's Hindu heritage and Gujarati culture.

The ideology of Modi's largesse is in stark contrast with the diplomatic lagniappe of the Gandhi-Nehruvian era when official gifts reflected the eclectic vision of secular histories like Gandhian memorabilia and Mughal symbols. On his first US visit in 2004, Manmohan Singh gave Obama a white, orange, blue, red, and green round marble table top inlaid with red, coral, malachite, lapis lazuli, mother-of-pearl, turquoise and agate flowers. In 2005, Singh went all Ravissant: a silver box relocating the floral designs of Diwan-e-Am and the Red Fort in a quilted design. He knew the personal likes and dislikes of American leaders. Since Hillary Clinton, as Obama's Secretary of State, was influential in foreign policy, he gifted her a boat-shaped silver purse. The diplomatic fruits of success became allegories of accord when President George Bush visited India in 2006 and asked for Indian mangoes, which were duly served: "The US is looking forward to eating Indian mangoes," he had said. India had banned the export of mangoes, which was promptly lifted. The first consignment of Alphonso and Kesari mangoes landed in Washington soon, and trade policies and agreements for agricultural research projects got green signals. Indira Gandhi and son Rajiv were enamoured by Indian textiles, which some close friends had advised would make good presents that reflected the Indian native aesthetics. According to their confidantes, they never considered geographical, historical or cultural accents while choosing gifts. Atal Bihari Vajpayee's charm was a gift by itself: during his last US visit in 2003, he presented Bill Clinton with an exquisite silk carpet—his way of rolling out the red carpet for the historic vision document, perhaps. Donald Trump's largesse to chosen world leaders was evident: a Tiffany brooch to Queen Elizabeth, an expensive book set to Theresa May, a cricket bat to Imran Khan, a $2900 tea set to Xi Jinping, and a pair of $2000 boxing gloves to Shinzo Abe. Obama was happy with $500 watches.

Then some gifts may be cruel jokes and exhibit one-upmanship. For example, during the Cold War, the exchange of gifts between Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev and President John Kennedy were imbued with sarcastic aggression masked as ritual politeness. In 1961, Khrushchev gifted Kennedy a pup named Pushinka from the litter of Laika, the first dog the Soviets sent into space, beating America in the space race. Kennedy vowed to Khrushchev that the US would put a man in space before Russia. But Pushinka didn't become a Cold War victim, having found a happy home in the White House with the Kennedy children; she even had puppies. During Richard Nixon's historic China visit in 1972, Patricia Nixon revealed her fondness for giant pandas. Chinese premier Zhou Enlai promptly sent two to Washington. However, such donatives haven't made significant changes in the lust and quest of superpowers for global domination. At best, gifts bring a momentary smile, and a warm handshake, the euphoria disappearing before the wrapping has faded. They languish in government strong rooms while their recipients try to strong arm each other. On the geopolitical course, instead of looking at a gift horse in the mouth, the leader who rides it wins the race.

PAIN OF DYNAMIC AND VARIABLE PRICING

OPINION

ANURADHA GOYAL
Author and founder of IndiTales

EVERYDAY groceries are what I carried for my friends in London every time I visited them from my small town outside the city limits of London. Cost of the same product used to be substantially lower in my small town in the same superstores. About two decades ago, this was my introduction to dynamic pricing, which has different price points for different customers at different times.

Around the same time, back home, Air Deccan introduced us to the idea of Re 1/- flight tickets. People spent hours on their website hoping to get a nearly free ticket. This also meant that last-minute or regular ticket prices went up substantially. The average prices would more or less stay the same, but the differential between the lowest and highest widened. Most airlines soon followed suit, and we lost control of our flying budgets. To add to the chaos, the ticket now comes with so many charges and optional things to buy, complicating my experience of simply flying to reach my destination. Most people are unaware of using browser cookies to change prices dynamically based on search.

The advent of e-commerce portals offered a lot of discounts to inculcate a habit of buying online, fuelled by investor money. They did succeed to a large extent. In the process, we lost the concept of MRP. Now to buy a mundane item, we surf multiple websites, comparing prices that include variables like delivery cost or membership benefits and, of course, the price at our neighbourhood store. Not to forget the chaos when the big festival sales happen.

Online travel agents, on the one hand, brought all possible hotels to our fingertips, but on the other, as a middleman, they took away any control that we had. Pre-payment means accepting whatever level of service or facilities is offered at the property. The risk of non or sub-par delivery is completely with the customer. Not just us, but even hotels lost control over what flexibility they had earlier. Today, typically, a direct booking with the hotel is far costlier than going through OTAs. Once the payment is received, the hotel has the least incentive to serve the random customer they have received, for they assume the customer is here because of the low price.

Then there are seasonal price spikes like everything in Goa in the last week of December or surge prices on our Taxi Apps. The price points change by the minute based on the demand. While the seller makes a quick buck, the customer feels cheated and is left with a bad taste.

For essential items like bottled water, where MRP is clearly mentioned, we were asked to pay multiples of it at airports and high-end restaurants. Thankfully, the government stepped in and made it mandatory to provide free and safe drinking water at public outlets. You may still struggle to find a jug with un-inviting glasses in the corner at your favourite multiplex, but it is there. It is not uncommon for all the water fountains to be out of order at airports forcing us to buy water bottles with prices decided by the respective outlets.

What disappointed me most was the dynamic pricing by Indian Railways. Trains in India are used by large sections of the Indian population for essential travel. You invariably book the tickets in advance, and you, of course, pay for the ticket in advance. What is the need to complicate the pricing just because some algorithm allows you to do it easily or you want to compete with the airlines which are still elitist in comparison?

> What is the need to complicate the pricing just because some algorithm allows you to do it easily

As a customer or consumer, I find tracking and planning my expenses extremely taxing. Even tiered variable pricing is acceptable; it at least allows me to plan in advance. More importantly, all these entities discard the fact that they may become inaccessible during emergencies or critical times for a large section of society.

I checked with my social media followers, and more than 75% of people preferred fixed pricing with some tiers of variable pricing once in a while to include either peak demand or sales during low one.

From the business's perspective, fixed pricing would keep their systems simple and revenues predictable. You can let go of some of your yield managers and have far fewer processes as you sell a standard product or service at a standard price. The customers like me would love predictability, dependability and a complication-free experience.

At the same time, I wonder what brand managers think of dynamic pricing. It dilutes the brand loyalty customers may have for them. The whole game becomes about pricing, so a 5-star property may be found clubbed together with a lodge solely based on the price determined by an algorithm. When they show a price point, I understand that costs may factor in the occupancy rates or shelf lives. Still, whatever you have spent building a brand is lost in the pure play price war. Your staff has no incentive to delight the customer that does not promise repeat business.

Finally, the dynamic pricing model copied from the capitalist West must factor in value-conscious Indian society. Assuming that we will pay higher prices once we get used to a service may not be true. And yes, negotiation, haggling and bargaining are something we enjoy, do not deny us that pleasure.

Rahul on Savarkar

The comment by RaGa on Savarkar has stirred up a hornet's nest among MVA, though all he said was borne out by history. Their consternation is more of sentiment than underlying facts. Having a view on any issue is not a crime but flaunting it at the cost of relationships is counterproductive. Congress's subsequent statement that the matter has been sorted out with MVA is a welcome step to avoid flare ups.

Kashi and Tamilagam

Apropos of The ageless bond of Kashi and Tamilagam (Nov 19). Governor R N Ravi has presented a perfect pen portrait of the evolutionary relationship between Kasi and Tamilagam. Kasi could well be construed as a symbol of the whole of Bharat and its spiritual capital. Tamil Nadu has contributed a lot towards shaping the Bharat and vice versa. The North and the South are in a living and loving relationship. It was, is and ever will be and the present conference inaugurated by Narendra Modiji would definitely pave the way for further strengthening the ties/bonds between Kasi and Tamizhagam.

Fighting terror

Apropos of Nations that aid terror must pay the price: Modi (Nov 19). Prime Minister Modi said the right words while addressing the No Money for Terror ministerial conference in New Delhi. Asserting that there can be no 'ifs and buts' in dealing with terrorism, he took the bull by the horn by tearing into nations that back terrorism through political, financial and ideological means. Various ministries and law-enforcing agencies in the country must go many a step further by clamping down resolutely on mechanisms that organise and provide local support to the nefarious designs of merchants of terror from across the borders. The nation must uncompromisingly come down hard on such facilitators.

Apropos of Over to Omar as Farooq steps down as NC president (Nov 19). Elections for party president post is a sham in all parties. The mantle of NC has been continuing from Sheikh to Farooq to Omar since its inception. Mehabooba of PDP got her post from her father Mufti Mohammad Sayeed. The question is after Omar and Mehbooba who will succeed in their families. Congress had Nehru-Indira-Rajiv-Sonia-Rahul as president in a so called democratic party . Stalin succeeded Karunanidhi , Jagan succeeded Rajasekhar Reddy , Abhishek will follow Mamata, Supriya will follow Sharad Pawar ,KTR and Kavitha will follow KCR , Naveen succeeded Biju . Cattle disease

The fast-spreading lumpy skin disease among cattle in Karnataka is a grave concern. Over 1.44 lakh cases have been reported in the last six months, of which the state recorded one lakh cases in just one month. Over 11,000 cattle have perished so far, and farmers are in distress. Milk production has come down drastically, and even putting oxen to work in agricultural fields is proving difficult. However, the Bommai government has done well to compensate the owners with ₹20,000 for a cow's death and ₹30,000 for oxen deaths.

Winter Session of Parliament from December 7

17 sittings over 23 days will see a slew of bills to be tabled, including Data Protection Bill

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR
@ New Delhi

THE Winter Session of Parliament will commence from December 7 to 29 this year and it will have 17 sittings with session spread over 23 days, said Union Parliamentary Affairs Minister Pralhad Joshi on Twitter on Saturday.

"The Winter Session of Parliament 2022 will commence from December 7 and continue till December 29 having 17 sittings spread over 23 days," the post said. He added that the government is hopeful of constructive debates on the floors of both the Houses. "Amid Amrit Kaal looking forward to discussion on Legislative Business and other items during the sessions," his tweet added.

Sources said that the first day of upcoming session will be adjourned after paying tribute to a few late sitting members. Samajwadi Party patriarch Mulayam Singh Yadav was one of the leaders whose death had prompted tributes from leaders across political parties.

However, the sessions after the first day are likely to be stormy with Opposition appearing determined to raise many issues to corner the government.

The government is learnt to have also prepared itself with a list of bills to introduce and get them during the session. The New Data Protection Bill 2022 among prominent bills to be tabled in the Parliament.

Earlier, the Monsoon Session was held for 22 days from July 18 to August 16. During the session, the government had introduced six bills in the Lok Sabha, but only five bills were passed by both the Houses. One bill was withdrawn in the Lok Sabha.

According to sources, with the Covid numbers seeing a massive decline and most members and staff of Lok Sabha and Rajya Sabha Secretariat being completely vaccinated, this session is likely to go ahead without any major pandemic-induced restrictions. Over the last two years, Covid has affected Parliament sessions.

Congress MP Rahul Gandhi might not be able to attend the Parliament Winter Session as he will be busy with Bharat Jodo Yatra, said Jairam Ramesh.

Shah proposes permanent secretariat against terror

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ New Delhi

EXHORTING member states of the No Money for Terror (NMFT) ministerial conference to agree on "one common definition of terrorism and terror financing" without allowing it to "become a political issue", Union Home Minister Amit Shah said on Saturday that preventing the "use of non-profit organisations" and the "NPO sector to spread terror ideology" should be a "priority".

Speaking at the concluding day of the NMFT conference, Shah referred to the ban imposed against the Popular Front of India (PFI) which "conspired to radicalise the youth and push them towards terrorism".

In this context, he said that "under the guise of other motives, some organisations promote terrorism and radicalisation at the national and international levels. It has also been found that these organisations tend to become the medium of financing terrorism".

Impressing upon the delegates to adopt a long-term strategy against terror financing, Shah chalked out some "priority issues" such as "preventing diversion of legal financial instruments by fighting anonymity in financial networks", "restricting the use of the proceeds of other crimes for terrorist activities" and stopping the "use of financial technologies, virtual assets like crypto-currencies, wallets etc for terror activities. Pointing out that the thrust should be to "eliminate the use of illegal channels, cash couriers and hawala by terror networks", Shah said that there should be "continuous capacity building of counter-terror and financial intelligence agencies".

> India has sensed the need for permanency of this unique initiative of 'No Money For Terror', in order to sustain the continued global focus on countering the financing of terrorism and now the time is ripe for a permanent Secretariat to be established
> Amit Shah, Home Minister

Citing IMF and World Bank data, Shah said that internationally criminals launder about $2 to $4 trillion every year and a "major part of it goes to fuel terrorism".

Identifying "five pillars" that must be central to combating terror financing, Shah said that the first was to "establish a comprehensive monitoring framework involving cooperation, coordination and collaboration among all intelligence and investigative agencies".

The second, according to Shah, should be adopting a strategy to "trace, target and terminate" low-level offences as well as more "organised economic crimes". Thirdly, legal structures related to terror finance must be strengthened and harmonised.

Shah said that in the course of the conference deliberations India "sensed the need for permanency" for the NMFT initiative as means to "sustain the continued global focus on countering the financing of terrorism". According to the home minister, the "time is ripe for a permanent secretariat to be established".

He said that in this regard India will shortly circulate a discussion paper among all "participating jurisdictions" for their comments.

Holding that the success of the NMFT platform depended on a "beyond-border cooperation" among member states, Shah said this approach would help stop "borderless finance movement that supports terrorism".

DR SOUMYA SWAMINATHAN

THE UNSUNG HEROINE OF BATTLE AGAINST COVID-19

KAVITA BAJELI-DATT @ New Delhi

IT surprised many when 63-year-old Dr Soumya Swaminathan, the World Health Organisation's (WHO) Chief Scientist in Geneva, announced her exit on Twitter with a cryptic note two years ahead of her retirement.

However, her exit — a first in a series of high-profile departures from the global health body — came on expected lines as was anticipated as part of post-pandemic shake-up in the WHO. Without specifying reasons for leaving, she later mentioned returning to India for more hands-on practical work in an interview.

Daughter of an illustrious father, MS Swaminathan, regarded as the father of India's Green Revolution, it seemed natural for young Soumya to grow up as one of the world's best scientific minds.

Born on May 2, 1959, Soumya and her sisters — Madhura Swaminathan, a Professor of Economics at the Indian Statistical Institute, Bangalore, and Nitya Rao, a Senior Lecturer in Gender Analysis in International Development at the University of East Anglia, UK — not only used to frequent their father to his labs but would also accompany their mother to mobile creches for poor children of the construction workers.

She recalled when her father, hailed as a hero who turned India into a food-sufficient nation from a food importer, was attacked, by even his colleagues, when questions about the harmful effects of pesticides were raised. She said that it was this time that she learned from her father how to take criticism well.

It is no wonder that her early childhood not only fired her scientific temperament but also shaped her personality as she looked for solutions to the many problems the less fortunate faced — especially in health. She became a paediatrician and globally known clinical scientist for her research on tuberculosis and HIV.

She was always a studious child. A CBSE topper amongst girls in 1975, she did her schooling at Springdales, New Delhi. Her first choice was to become a veterinarian as she confessed that she loved animals, but when she found all her classmates were preparing for medical school, she also took a chance. She topped in Medicine at Armed Forces Medical College, Pune and then joined the prestigious All India Institute of Medical Science for an MD in Paediatrics.

She joined Children's Hospital Los Angeles at the Keck School of Medicine of the University of Southern California, where she took a post-doctoral fellowship in neonatology and paediatric pulmonology from 1987 to 1989, where her passion for clinical research grew. She went on to work as a Research Fellow (Registrar) in the Department of Pediatric Respiratory Diseases at the University of Leicester in the UK.

The mother of two has published over 350 peer-reviewed publications and book chapters.

As Director General of the Indian Council of Medical Research (ICMR) and Secretary of the Department of Health Research, Union Health Ministry, she got a chance to work with her father for the second time — the first time was when she won the national science talent test as a teenager — when they tried to develop interventional strategies to address the problem of under-nutrition and hidden hunger.

By then, she was already an inspiration and a role model for budding women scientists in India, but greater things awaited her. She was appointed Deputy Director General of the World Health Organisation in October 2017 and became the first Indian to hold the position at WHO. In March 2019, she became Chief Scientist at the world health body, overseeing the technical work and the new areas of digital health and innovation.

And then the Covid happened. As the world grappled with the pandemic, she became one of the familiar and known faces globally — with her silver-grey hair, handwoven saris and bindi — as she explained in a calm, poised manner during her regular bi-weekly press briefings on the pandemic. Without causing panic, she could give simple answers to complex questions.

Rightly described by some of her community members as an "unsung heroines" of the almost three years of fight against Covid, Dr Swaminathan, with her 30 years of experience, is sure to bring a wealth of scientific knowledge, evidence-based practice and clinical research to whatever assignment she takes up next — which she is yet to reveal.

Delhi PFI chief, 3 others named in ED chargesheet

AMIT MUKHERJEE @ New Delhi

THE Enforcement Directorate has filed a chargesheet against the Delhi PFI, its president Pervez Ahmed and three others, for allegedly laundering money originating from various locations including foreign destinations and using it for illegal activities during the Delhi riots.

The nearly 125-page chargesheet was filed at the court of special Judge Shailendra Malik by ED counsel NK Matta and Mohammad Faizan Khan on Saturday at the Patiala House court premise. The others who have been named in the chargesheet are Mohammad Illias, PFI's Delhi unit general secretary and Abdul Muqeet office secretary. All three are at present in the judicial custody.

The ED has alleged in the chargesheet that the accused persons were instrumental in collecting funds by donations, hawala transactions and banking channels, which were used for unlawful activities and commission of scheduled offences.

The ED also claimed to have stumbled upon records of foreign transfers of funds through an illegal clandestine channel under a conspiracy hatched by the PFI office-bearers over several years. During the searches conducted on the people, the agency recovered evidence of bogus cash receipts, donations and bank transfers. The ED claimed that the accused had denied any association with PFI but later confessed to be involved in fund raising for the organisation.

Rijiju questions 'CJI-lawyers meet on HC transfers'

SHRUTI KAKKAR @ New Delhi

IN the midst of the controversy surrounding HC bar associations opposing the proposed transfer of three HC judges and lawyers delegation meeting the CJI to put forth their grievances, Union Law Minister Kiren Rijiju on Saturday said that recurring instances of this kind with regards to every decision taken by the "collegium" or which is being supported by the government, will change the "whole dimension."

He made these remarks at the felicitation function organised by the Bar Council of India for CJI DY Chandrachud.

Referring to CJI agreeing to meet the delegation of Gujarat HC Advocate's Association on Monday to hear lawyers' grievance regarding the proposed transfer of Justice Kariel, Rijiju said, "Sometimes some of the HCs have got unique problems and there are issues which aren't easy to understand. You have to be there with them. It's not easy to understand any issue just like that.

"When there are issues.. yesterday, I heard that some lawyers they want to meet CJI for transfer case. Now the issue maybe in isolation, it may be one of the issues. But if it becomes recurring instances for every decision taken by Collegium or which is being supported by government, then where will it lead to. The whole dimension will change. It is not just judiciary alone."

Rijiju also said, "I heard that some lawyers are going on strike for some issues. In these days to come these are some of the things which we may see frequently and we think & decide whether these things are good for the institution or not. Everybody talks about strengthening the institution, if we don't respect the institution it may amount to disrespecting yourself. When there are things which are becoming too loud in terms of putting forward your demand, then there are risks of taking a different turn."

Madras HC lawyers oppose pending transfer of acting CJ

SHRUTI KAKKAR @ New Delhi

AMIDST the buzz of proposed transfer of the acting Chief Justice of Madras HC Justice T Raja to Rajasthan HC for "administrative reasons", Madras High Court Advocates Association objected the transfer of the judge. In a representation addressed to CJI, MHAA president G Mohanakrishnan has urged the Collegium and Government of India to drop the proposal and allow Acting Chief Justice of Madras HC to continue in his present capacity till he attains superannuation.

"During his 13-odd years as judge of this chartered HC, Justice Raja has delivered several thousand judgments and has earned a reputation as a people's judge who would render justice irrespective of who appears and argues before him. So, the proposed sudden transfer, that too while he has just about six month of his illustrious career left, is definitely a bad news for judiciary," the MHAA representation said.

ACTIVIST Gautam Navlakha, an accused in Elgar Parishad-Maoists links case, was released from prison on Saturday evening and taken to a building in Navi Mumbai where he will be living under house arrest for a month.

His release from Taloja prison in Navi Mumbai after more than two years came nine days after the Supreme Court earlier this month granted his plea seeking house arrest on medical grounds.

Navlakha, 70, walked out prison around 6 pm. A police team took him to a building in Belapur-Agroli area of Navi Mumbai where he would be staying.

Earlier in the day, judge Rajesh Katariya of the special court for National Investigation Agency (NIA) cases here issued his "release memo".

The ground-plus-two Comrade B T Randive Building belongs to the Communist Party of India (Marxist) and houses a public library on the ground floor. The 70-year-old activist who claims to be suffering from multiple ailments was in jail since April 2020 after his arrest in the 2017-18 case.

On November 10, the Supreme Court, in response to his application, directed that he be put under house arrest for a month with certain conditions. The order should be implemented within 48 hours, the court said.

But the NIA, which is probing the Elgar case, moved the apex court again contending that Navlakha, being a chargesheeted accused in a case involving threat to the national security and integrity, did not deserve any relaxation.

On Friday afternoon the SC maintained its November 10 order and said he must be put under house arrest within 24 hours.

Modi a swayamsevak, but works independently: RSS

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bhopal

RSS chief Mohan Bhagwat said on Saturday that while Prime Minister Narendra Modi was a Sangh swayamsewak and pracharak (volunteer), the RSS does not directly or remotely control outfits like the Vishwa Hindu Parishad (VHP), which though are run by swayamsevaks.

"Whenever the name of Sangh comes in, you take Modiji's name. Yes Modiji was a Sangh swayamsevak and also a pracharak. The VHP, too, is run by our Swayamsevaks. But they work independently. We can only offer consultations and advice, but can never control them," said the RSS chief. He was addressing an event in MP's Jabalpur on Saturday.

"Hindutva means the philosophy of embracing all -- the Preamble of the Constitution is the prime spirit of Hindutva," he said.

Addressing a gathering of intellectuals and prominent people in Jabalpur, Bhagwat said: "India didn't become one nation on the basis of language, trading interests, political power and thought. It has become one nation on the basis of unity in diversity and Vasudhaiv Kutumbakam (world is one family)."

He said that it's not the language or the worship system that forms a society. People with a common objective build a society. "Diversities are welcome and acceptable, but diversities should in no manner become the basis of any discrimination."

Promote Punjabi language, start with signboards: CM

Mann directs that all signboards in state should have Punjabi on top

HARPREET BAJWA @Chandigarh

TO promote Punjabi language and culture, Chief Minister Bhagwant Mann on Saturday said all signboards in the state would have Punjabi on the top. Citing the examples of other states, Mann called upon the people to join a mass movement to promote the Punjabi language. "All signboards on private and public buildings across the state should be in Punjabi," he said.

Mann was addressing a gathering to mark the Punjabi language month at Guru Nanak Dev University in Amritsar.

The CM also cited the examples of states like Maharashtra, Tamil Nadu and others where people show a lot of respect to their mother tongue by putting up all signboards on their shops and commercial establishments in their native language.

He exhorted Punjabis to make sure that all the signboards are put up prominently in Punjabi with other languages as a mark of respect to the mother tongue.

Mann said people should ensure that the signboards in Punjabi are put up before International Language Day on February 21. He underscored the need for making this a mass movement as a mark of respect for the mother tongue.

He also called upon the Punjabi community within and outside the country to promote Punjabi language and culture in a big way. He pointed out that though English was universally accepted as a link language, it should not be promoted at the cost of mother tongue. "Sadly, the Punjabis are drifting away from their mother language. The trend needs to be reversed because we can communicate and express ourselves well only in our mother tongue."

"Due to mental slavery, we still believe in superiority of English whereas the fact is that Punjabi is the best language for every one of us," he added.

'Punjabis drifting away from mother language'

CM Bhagwant Mann also called upon the Punjabi community within and outside the country to promote Punjabi language and culture in a big way. He pointed out that though English was universally accepted as a link language, it should not be promoted at the cost of the mother tongue. "Sadly, Punjabis are drifting away from their mother language. The trend needs to be reversed because we can communicate and express ourselves well only in our mother tongue," he said.

"Many countries abroad are using Punjabi language but we are somehow shying away from it," the AAP leader said.

Citing the example of France, the chief minister said the French preferred to converse in their mother tongue as a mark of respect, adding that Punjabis should also make their native language an integral part of their lives.

He said no language is a symbol of intelligence. However, Punjabis continue to ignore their own mother tongue. The chief minister urged educational institutes in the state to initiate specialised courses in Punjabi language.

PROTEST

Farmers target Mann, say govt betrayed them

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Chandigarh

A day after Chief Minister Bhagwant Mann accused farmer unions of holding his government to ransom, the unions hit back saying the state government was not serious about their demands.

The unions have been protesting at half-a-dozen locations along Amritsar-Pathankot, Jalandhar-Pathankot, and Chandigarh-Patiala highways.

Jagjit Singh Dallewal, president, Bhartiya Kisan Union (Sidhupur), said the government has betrayed the farmers by listing over 4,000 of them for stubble burning despite promising them not to do so. "These farmers cannot take loans against their lands," said Dallewal, who is on a protest fast.

"The government has also gone back on its promise to return the common village land to small farmers," said Dallewal. He added that moong dal growers were promised MSP, but farmers had to sell it in the open market. "When we were protesting at Delhi border, then it was fine for AAP. But now that the protests are taking place in Punjab, the government has called it a political gimmick," he said.

Sukhdev Singh Kokrikalan, general secretary, BKU (Ekta Ugrahan), said sacrifices made by them have been overlooked.

Maken's offer to resign fuels buzz about Raj Cong rift

RAJESH ASNANI @Jaipur

THE political temperature in Rajasthan is heating up days before Rahul Gandhi's Bharat Jodo Yatra enters the state. Congress state in-charge Ajay Maken's offer to resign, a fortnight before Rahul's arrival, has fed rumours about whether it was a coincidence or done intentionally?

Angry over the lack of action against three rebel leaders of the Gehlot faction for the uproar on September 25 despite Mallikarjun Kharge becoming the party president, Maken wrote to the party president on November 8, offering to quit the post of state in-charge.

On the resignation of Maken, Pilot supporter and MLA Ved Prakash Solanki said, "Maken has left the post after being hurt by the September 25 incident and that is a matter of shame for us."

Maken was an observer along with Kharge for the legislature party meeting in Jaipur on September 25. MLAs of the Gehlot faction had boycotted that meeting. After this, the rift in the state unit widened and Gehlot had to apologise to Sonia Gandhi. It was on the basis of Kharge and Maken's report that notices were issued to ministers Shanti Dhariwal, Mahesh Joshi and RTDC chairman Dharmendra Rathore who were held responsible for the boycott of the meeting. Though the three leaders have replied, the matter has been put in cold storage. The Gehlot camp had even accused Maken of manipulating MLAs in an effort to make Pilot the CM.

Political observers are linking Maken's letter to pressure by the Pilot camp for action against the rebels before Rahul's visit. Maken is also angry with the trio being made the main organisers for Rahul's visit in the state. His displeasure is keeping alive the chapter of leadership change in the state.

MLA Khiladi Lal Bairwa, a Pilot supporter, said, "No action being taken against all the three for 51 days is a serious matter. Whatever changes have to be made should be done before Rahul Gandhi's visit. Immediate action should be taken against all the three leaders."

Political analysts believe the that real reason behind Maken's resignation is to revive the demand for change of the chief minister in Rajasthan.

Aam Aadmi Party MLA from Ropar, Dinesh Chadha, donned the cap of the good samaritan recently while he was on his way from Ropar to Nurpur Bedi. The legislator, upon seeing the injured couple lying on the road, stopped his vehicle and took them in his own car to the Ropar Civil Hospital. Chadha had called for an ambulance but as it was taking time to reach the spot, he decided to take the duo to the hospital in his own car. Tamil world's oldest language, says PM, puts it on a pedestal

NAMITA BAJPAI @Lucknow

LIKENING the Kashi-Tamil Sangamam he inaugurated on Saturday to the holy confluence of the Ganga and the Yamuna, Prime Minister Narendra Modi sought to play down the dominance of Hindi and put Tamil on a pedestal as the oldest language in the world.

In an indirect reference to the ongoing controversy over languages, he called upon countrymen to shed linguistic differences and strive for emotional and spiritual unity.

Inaugurating the month-long Kashi-Tamil Sangamam in Varanasi, the PM said the country was the proud home to two of the oldest languages of the world. "The two regions are the centres of the world's oldest languages, Sanskrit and Tamil."

However, though Tamil is one of the world's oldest living languages, the nation lacked in according it due honour, he said. Seeking to strike a chord with Tamilians, the PM said: "It is the responsibility of 130 crore Indians to preserve the legacy of Tamil and enrich it. If we ignore Tamil, we do a great disservice to the nation, and if we keep Tamil confined in restrictions and barriers, we will do great harm to it. We have to remember to remove linguistic differences and establish emotional unity in the country."

Addressing a gathering of around 2,500 delegates from Tamil Nadu on the lawns of the BHU amphitheatre, Modi hailed Kashi and Tamil Nadu as timeless centres of culture and civilisation. He exhorted people of different regions to organise more such events to celebrate the cultural, spiritual and ideological oneness of the country.

We must tell the world with pride that we are home to Tamil, the oldest language in the world. We need to be proud of this heritage and work towards strengthening it further

Guj BJP attacks Rahul as Medha Patkar joins yatra

DILIP SINGH KSHATRIYA @Ahmedabad

THE BJP got some more fodder to attack Rahul Gandhi on Saturday after the Congress leader was joined during his Bharat Jodo Yatra by Narmada Bachao Andolan activist Medha Patkar in Maharashtra.

The BJP in Gujarat is now trying to extract maximum political mileage out of the issue, as it comes just ahead of the Assembly polls in the state.

Targeting the Congress, Gujarat CM Bhupendra Patel tweeted: "Congress and Rahul Gandhi have time and again shown their animosity towards Gujarat and Gujaratis. By giving Medha Patkar a central place in his yatra, Rahul Gandhi shows that he stands with those elements who denied water to Gujaratis for decades."

Other BJP leaders also took the opportunity to slam Rahul. "Medha Patkar was the person who didn't want the Narmada dam project to get complete," ex-CM Vijay Rupani said. "Now Patkar has joined Bharat Jodo Yatra, which shows that Congress is against development, which is their true face."

State BJP chief CR Patil emphasized that Narmada is an important matter for the state, and tweeted, "People who oppose Narmada are considered anti-Gujarat by the people, that is why Rahul has hurt the sentiments of people by walking with Medha Patkar who has opposed the Narmada project for so many years."

In August, Patel had referred to Patkar as an "urban Naxal," and used her former association with AAP to attack the party.

Without naming Patkar, Prime Minister Narendra Modi had also said during a poll rally in Kutch that the "anti-Gujarat agenda of the Opposition is being comprehensively rejected".

According to political analyst Dilip Patel, BJP had been looking for a tenable issue to target Congress. Rahul's walk with Patkar has given the ruling party just that.

Modi gives Guj progress credit to people; reaches out to women, youth at rally

DILIP SINGH KSHATRIYA @Ahmedabad

PRIME Minister Narendra Modi on Saturday once again underlined the special focus that the BJP government has accorded upon women and tribals in Gujarat. Modi held a road show and addressed a public meeting in Valsad as a part of the ongoing BJP campaign for the Assembly elections in his home state.

Speaking on the occasion, Modi recalled the days when the region was starving for development, and said that over the last two decades, Valsad has come to have facilities like engineering and medical college, and other avenues for the youth so that they do not have to travel far for education.

Modi addressed first-time voters, asking them to ensure that they open up the avenues to realise their dreams. He also noted the significant attendance of women in the audience and thanked them for showering their blessings upon the party. The PM highlighted that it is a matter of pride that a tribal woman has become the country's President.

He also pointed out that the former Gujarat MLA Mangubhai Patel, a tribal from south Gujarat, has become the governor of Madhya Pradesh.

'Matter of pride to have a tribal woman as President'

PM Narendra Modi noted the significant attendance of women in the audience and thanked them for showering their blessings. He highlighted that it is a matter of pride that a tribal woman has become Indian President. He also pointed out that Mangubhai Patel, a tribal from Gujarat, has become Madhya Pradesh governor.

Sticking to his earlier strands of campaigning in the state, Modi stated that development in the region has not been brought about by him or any other political leader but by the people of Gujarat. He had recently also launched the 'Aa Gujarat Mai Vanavyu Chee (I built this Gujarat)' campaign.

Modi is scheduled to spend two more days in the state and hold rallies across Saurashtra. Sources say that he may also try to placate the leaders who are feeling disenchanted after being denied tickets. The south Gujarat and Saurashtra regions go to polls during the first phase on December 1.

Bihar minister, Centre trade charges over availability of fertilizer in state

RAMASHANKAR @Patna

AMID a scarcity of fertilizer in the state, the Bihar government has accused the Centre of not allotting it its full quota, a charge that has been denied by Union Chemicals and Fertilizers Minister Dr Mansukh Mandaviya. Bihar Agriculture Minister Kumar Sarvjeet accused the Centre of discriminating against the state with an intention to dent the image of the Nitish Kumar government among the farmers. On the other hand, Mandaviya on Friday tweeted that there is no fertilizer crisis in the country.

Sarvjeet also held a meeting with the department officers to review the shortage of fertilizer, during which he took details of allotment and actual delivery of fertilizer from the Centre till November 18.

"We are facing a crisis of urea as Bihar has received only 37% of the quota from the Centre," he said. "Bihar requires 2.55 lakh metric tonnes of urea till December 15 but there is no guarantee that the Centre would provide the remaining 63% of urea in the next 15-20 days," he added. Bihar has received only 70% of allotted 1,22,300 metric tonnes of DAP from the Centre while it should have been allotted at least 90% of the quota, Sarvjeet said.

Contending that Mandaviya's claim on the availability of fertilizer was wrong, Sarvjeet said that he had online discussions with 1,800 farmers. He stressed that delay in allotment of fertilizer would encourage black marketing as even authorised dealers would start selling fertilizer on the market price. He alleged that Bihar faced scarcity of fertilizer even during Uttar Pradesh Assembly poll as the neighbouring state was given it in surplus by the Centre.

Meanwhile, farmers are venting their ire over the issue by indulging in vandalism across the state.

During his visit to Bihar in September, Union Minister of State for Fertilizers Bhagwanth Khuba had accused the Nitish government of creating an artificial crisis despite regular supply from the Centre. BJP OBC Morcha national general secretary Nikhil Anand echoed similar views on the issue, saying that there was sufficient stock to meet the requirement for the rabi season 2022-23.

"The Union government is allocating fertilizer as per requirement of the sates. Once the consignment is allocated, it's responsibility of the state government to ensure proper availability of mineral to the farmers," he added.

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Chandigarh

PAKISTAN-BASED gangster-turned-Khalistani terrorist Harvinder Singh Sandhu alias Rinda on whom the National Investigation Agency (NIA) had announced a cash reward of ₹10 lakh earlier this year has died due to 'drug overdose'.

Sources said that Rinda had been living in Pakistan for some time. He reportedly died on Friday at a military hospital in Pakistan, where he was shifted from a private hospital. He had recently parted ways with Wadhawa Singh — another wanted Khalistani militant.

Rindha originally hailed from Rattoke village in Taran Taran district of Punjab but now his permanent address was Nanded in Maharashtra.

U'khand: Prisoners released during Covid yet to return

NARENDRA SETHI @Dehradun

RELEASED on parole during the Covid-19 pandemic, many undertrials and convicts have failed to report back to their jails. These prisoners were released on humanitarian grounds during the pandemic and their disappearance has now become a matter of concern. At least 84 of the 198 prisoners released from state jails are yet to return.

Deputy Inspector General of Police (Prisons) Dadhi Ram told this daily, "In a clear view of an order of the Hon'ble Supreme Court, all such undertrials that were released on parole during the pandemic should not be forced to surrender".

"A total of 198 prisoners were released on personal bonds for 30 days on the first day in various jails of the state following the SC order. The court then extended the period twice more, totalling 90 days. After this, the prisoners were supposed to return on their own but 84 have still not returned," Ram said, adding that prisoners sentenced to less than seven years in jail were released to follow social distancing norms. Those lodged in heinous criminal and economic offences were not included.

Referring to the SC guidelines, Ram said, "Being bound by the guidelines, we have not yet started any proceedings to forcibly bring them back."

Twitter future tense as staff defy Musk ultimatum

Many employees reportedly chose to reject his demand to become extremely hardcore

SAN FRANCISCO

THE future of Twitter seemed to hang in the balance after its offices were locked down and key employees announced their departures in defiance of an ultimatum from new owner Elon Musk.

Fears grew that a fresh exodus would threaten the very existence of one of the world's most influential internet platforms, which serves as a key communication tool for the world's media, politicians, companies and celebrities.

According to ex-employees and US media, hundreds of employees chose "no" to Musk's demand that they either be "extremely hardcore" or leave the company.

"So my friends are gone, the vision is murky, there is a storm coming and no financial upside. What would you do?" tweeted Peter Clowes, who refused Musk's final warning.

Musk has come under fire for radical changes at the California-based firm, which he bought less than a month ago for $44 billion. He had already fired half of Twitter's 7,500 staff, scrapped a work-from-home policy and imposed long hours.

His stumbling attempts to revamp user verification with a controversial subscription service led to a slew of fake accounts and pranks, and prompted major advertisers to step away from the platform.

On Friday, Musk appeared to be pressing on with his plans and reinstated previously banned accounts, including that of comedian Kathy Griffin, which had been taken down after she impersonated him on the site.

Fevered talk of the site's imminent demise was driving record high engagement on Twitter, according to Musk.

In a tweet, the South African-born billionaire said, "Record numbers of users are logging in to see if Twitter is dead, ironically making it more alive than ever!" Musk added that the "best people are staying, so I'm not super worried."

Despite Musk's assurances, entry to Twitter's offices were temporarily closed until Monday, even with a badge, according to an internal message seen on US media.

A top regulator for the European Union meanwhile said that Musk should be increasing the number of moderators in Europe, not reducing them. Musk "knows perfectly well what the conditions are for Twitter to continue operating in Europe," EU commissioner Thierry Breton told French radio.

A spokesman for German Chancellor Olaf Scholz said the government was watching developments at Twitter "with growing concern" and reviewing its presence on the platform. AFP

Now, a Twitter poll on if Trump should be reinstated

SAN FRANCISCO

ELON Musk expressed excitement on Saturday as he watched votes pour in on a Twitter poll he has posted on whether to readmit Donald Trump to the messaging platform.

"Reinstate former President Trump," the Twitter owner posted Friday, with a chance to vote either yes or no.

As of about 1500 GMT on Saturday, 52.3% of nearly 11 million responses were in favour of a return of the former president, who was banned from Twitter for his role in last year's attack on the US Capitol by a mob of his followers seeking to overturn the results of the 2020 election.

Musk said the poll was drawing a million answers one way or another per hour.

"Fascinating to watch Twitter Trump poll!" Musk said on Saturday in the latest blast of tweets from the hard-charging new owner of the one-to-many messaging platform.

on Friday, Musk also posted a Latin adage suggesting that the decision would be up to Twitter users: "Vox Populi, Vox Dei" ("The voice of the people is the voice of God").

He has done similar polls in the past, asking followers last year if he should sell stock in his electric car company Tesla. Following that poll, he sold more than $1 billion in shares. AFP

Russia furious as Poland bars Lavrov from security talks

MOSCOW

RUSSIA on Saturday blasted Warsaw's refusal to allow Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov to attend a meeting next month of the Organisation for Security and Co-operation in Europe (OSCE) as "unprecedented and provocative". "The decision from Poland, which is the acting chairman of the OSCE, to refuse the participation of the Minister of Foreign Affairs Sergei Lavrov in the OSCE's ministerial meeting in Lodz on December 1-2 is unprecedented and provocative," the foreign ministry said of the gathering of ministers from the world's largest security body. "Not only did Warsaw discredit itself, it also caused irreparable damage to the credibility of the organisation as a whole," the ministry said. Poland on Friday said it would not let Lavrov, under European sanctions, in the country for the meeting. "Delegations should be adjusted to the current EU regulations and not include persons that are sanctioned by the European Union," the Polish OSCE chairmanship said in a statement.

"With such destructive decisions, the Poles... are pushing the OSCE into the abyss," the Russian ministry retorted. It said the move would be "depriving (the OSCE) of the last chance to show its relevance in strengthening security and establishing cooperation, for which it was created".The ministry charged that the security body was turning into "a platform for political show and anti-Russian exercises". "We are convinced that all sensible politicians share the position of the Russian side regarding the inadmissibility of such actions," it said.

The Russian delegation will now be led by its permanent representative to the OSCE Alexander Lukashevich. AFP

RARE GESTURE

KIM UNVEILS DAUGHTER AT MISSILE LAUNCH SITE

SEOUL

KIM Jong Un unveiled the fourth generation of his ruling family on Saturday, appearing in photographs with his daughter for the first time ever, giving analysts a clear indication of his dynastic vision for North Korea.

State media has never mentioned Kim's children—the regime has not even officially confirmed they exist but on Saturday, KCNA reported that Kim, "together with his beloved daughter and wife", oversaw the launch of an intercontinental ballistic missile.

Pictures showed a beaming Kim holding hands with an adoring girl in a white puffer jacket and red shoes, walking in front of a giant black-and-white missile and appearing to celebrate a successful test.

Kim married his wife Ri Sol Ju, in 2009, as per Seoul's spy agency. She gave birth to their first child the following year.

The daughter revealed in the photographs is presumed to be Ju Ae—likely Kim's second child, Cheong Seongchang of the Center for North Korea Studies at the Sejong Institute in South Korea said, adding that she was the equivalent of a North Korean "princess".

Now that her identity has been revealed, she will likely be able to participate in state affairs, he said, adding her appearance with her father could even indicate she was his anointed successor.

To introduce Kim's daughter to the world at this juncture could be a message to the world that the North Korean regime is not going away, analyst Soo Kim said. "In a way, it's a symbolic picture of Kim passing the sceptre of rule to the next generation," she said, which sends "a message to the international community to accept and brace for North Korea's fourth iteration of terror and belligerence".

She said that the photos also suggest "a degree of closeness and comfort between Kim and his daughter", which could indicate that she is being groomed for future leadership.

The photographs may also be part of a carefully stage-managed attempt by Pyongyang to show Kim is a "normal" leader, North Korean studies scholar Ahn Chan-il said.

Other analysts said the timing and location of the daughter's introduction to the world —at an ICBM launch was disturbing. AFP

Daughters motivation for safer UK streets: Sunak

LONDON

BRITISH Prime Minister Rishi Sunak has spoken of his worry as a parent of his daughters, saying it is the motivation behind his determination to crack down on crime and make the country's streets safer.

The father of 11-year-old Krishna and nine-year-old Anoushka told reporters on the way to the G20 Summit in Bali last weekend that the issue of safety of women is personally important to him.

Referring to some recent incidents of attacks on women and girls in the UK, he said, "I want to make sure that my kids and everyone else can walk around safely; that's what any parent wants for their children." He said "many of us men" take safety for granted.

"So, tackling that and making it safer for people is something that's just personally quite important to me."

According to a BBC report on Saturday, Sunak shared how Krishna had wanted to walk to her primary school in London by herself when she turned 11, which was the reason why his family had previously moved out of their 11, Downing Street flat earlier this year and closer to her school before he resigned as chancellor in July. They have since moved back into 10, Downing after he took office as prime minister last month. Asked about life back at Downing Street, he said moving back into the flat the family lived in when he was chancellor above No 10 had made the transition "easier than it otherwise might have been". PTI

Elizabeth Holmes, second from right, walks into federal court in San Jose | AP

Holmes gets 11 years in jail for Theranos scam

SAN JOSE

FALLEN US biotech star Elizabeth Holmes was on Friday sentenced to just over 11 years in prison for defrauding investors with her Silicon Valley start-up. The Theranos founder had been convicted on four felony fraud counts in January for persuading investors that she had developed a revolutionary medical device before the company flamed out after a media investigation.

The closely watched case became an indictment of Silicon Valley. while US federal prosecutors had sought a 15-year jail term for Holmes, she was sentenced to 135 months. US attorney Stephanie Hinds said the sentence "reflects the audacity of her massive fraud and the damage she caused."

"For almost a decade, Elizabeth Holmes fabricated and spread elaborate falsehoods to draw in a legion of capital investors, both big and small, and her deceit caused the loss of hundreds of millions of dollars," the prosecutor said following the judge's decision.

Holmes, who is pregnant, will not have to surrender herself until April next year, ordered US District Judge Edward Davila in a courtroom in San Jose, California. She will appeal her conviction.

Moments before her sentencing, a tearful Holmes told the court: "I stand before you taking responsibility for Theranos." Holmes became a star of Silicon Valley when she said her now defunct start-up was perfecting an easy-to-use test kit that could carry out a wide range of medical diagnostics with just a few drops of blood.

She sold investors on the idea that her invention would disrupt medical practice, replacing expensive lab tests with her cheap kits. But prosecutors said Holmes knew her device was not producing accurate and reliable results. AFP

Many loose ends in new Personal Data Protection Bill 2022

The new bill retains the exemptions to government and government agencies in the pretext of national security, and maintenance of public order

RAKESH KUMAR

THE government on Friday re-introduced the draft Personal Data Protection Bill 2022 (PDPD 2022) for public consultation. The bill, which was withdrawn from parliament during the Monsoon session in 2022, comes up with various changes including heavy penalties in case of data breach and easing cross-border data flows. It also exempts government agencies from the law in case of national security.

The bill not only penalises the entities for data breach, it proposes to impose fine of ₹10,000 on individuals too for providing false information, impersonating and filing frivolous complaints against social-media. For the first time, the government has used 'her' and 'she' to refer to individuals irrespective of gender in the bill instead of using 'he' and 'him'. The bill is in the public domain for consultation until December 17, 2022, and likely to be tabled next year in the budget session.

Why was it withdrawn?

The Personal Data Protection Bill, 2019, which seeks to protect personal data of individuals was first introduced in Lok Sabha by then Minister of Electronics and Information Technology, Ravi Shankar Prasad on December 11, 2019. The bill was referred to the standing committee and on August 3 ,2022, MeitY withdrew the bill stating that a more comprehensive legal framework will be presented soon. At that time, the bill took heat from tech companies like Facebook and Google as well as civil society activists. The tech giants were against storing a copy of certain sensitive personal data within India. However, in the Draft Personal Data Protection Bill 2022, the government has junked the idea. Activists criticised the provision of the bill, which exempts government's agencies from adhering to the law or penalties. As per the draft bill, the Centre has been empowered to exempt its agencies from adhering to provisions of the bill in the interest of sovereignty and integrity of India, security of the state, friendly relations with foreign states, maintenance of public order or preventing incitement to any cognisable offence.

Bill proposes fine of ₹10,000 on individuals

Bill not only penalises entities for data breach, it proposes to impose fine of ₹10,000 on individuals for providing false information, impersonating and filing frivolous complaints against social media. For the first time, the government has used 'her' and 'she' to refer to individuals

About the bill

As per the explanatory note of the bill, it is a legislation that frames out the rights and duties of the citizen (Digital Nagrik) on one hand and the puts obligations to use collected data lawfully of the data fiduciary on the other hand. It said the bill is based on the principles around the Data Economy: the first principle is that usage of personal data by organisations must be done in a manner that is lawful, fair to the individuals concerned and transparent to individuals. The second principle of purpose limitation is that the personal data is used for the purposes for which it was collected. The purpose to introduce the bill, the government said, is currently there are over 76 crore (760 million) active internet users (Digital Nagriks) and over the next coming years this is expected to touch 120 crore (1.2 billion). "It has become clear over the last few years while this data is used by platforms and intermediaries, the data and personal data must be subject to a framework of rules and dos and don'ts," reads the note. The consent given Data Principal is the basis of processing of personal data, the Data Principal will have the right to withdraw her consent at any time. Every Data Fiduciary and Data Processor should protect personal data in its possession or under its control by taking security safeguards to prevent data breach. The bill proposes to set up a Data Protection Board of India. In the event of a personal data breach, the Data Fiduciary or Data Processor will have to notify the Board and each affected Data Principal. The Data Fiduciary may store personal data only under a valid contract.

In this bill, the government hiked the fine on entities manifold, as much as ₹500 crore, in certain cases. Penalties on entities could be as much as ₹250 crore in case of data breach. For instance, the failure of Data Processor or Data Fiduciary to take reasonable security safeguards to prevent personal data breach will invite fines of up to ₹250 crore. The 2019 bill had proposed a penalty of ₹15 crore or 4% of the global turnover of an entity. In case entities fail to notify the Board and affected Data Principals in the event of a personal data breach or non-fulfillment of additional obligations in relation to children, the proposed fine is up to ₹200 crore. Non-fulfilment of additional obligations of Significant Data Fiduciary will invite a fine of ₹150 crore. For children's data, entities will have to obtain parental consent. A data fiduciary will not track or undertake behavioural monitoring of children or target advertising directed at children.

Experts view

The bill has not pleased everyone. Non-profit Internet Freedom Foundation (IFF), which conducts advocacy on digital rights and liberties, said the proposed Data Protection Board lacks autonomy and independence. The data fiduciaries no longer have to mention how long they will store user data or if they will share it with third parties. "Consent of a Data Principal will be deemed in certain situations, including for the maintenance of public order, purposes related to employment and in public interest, opening the door to wide and vague interpretation... Like previous versions of the DPDPB grants vast exemptions to governmental agencies." Abhishek Tripathi, managing partner of Sarthak Advocates & Solicitors, said the bill appears to be an over-simplified version of the PDP Bill 2019."Deemed consent provisions arising out of public interest may raise eyebrows, besides the extent of exemptions allowed. An important change relates to the substitution of earlier suggested Data Protection Authority of India with Data Protection Board of India. The functions, and composition of the Board are to be determined via delegated legislation. This may face constitutional challenge as it is a case of excessive delegation," said Tripathi.

GLOBAL DEBT RISING AT ALARMING RATE

SUNITHA NATTI

GLOBAL debt is dangerously rising with each clock tick. But what's more alarming is that, such reckless has borrowing pushed the world over a barrel and into a potential 'fifth wave of debt crisis.'

About 30% of Emerging Markets (EMs) and 60% of low-income countries are now in, or at high risk of debt distress, according to the IMF. Debt default is the biggest challenge confronting countries, who are spending more on interest payments than on welfare, halting their fight against poverty.

In 2021, global debt reached a historic peak of $303 trillion, higher than the 2020 record of $226 trillion, according to the Institute of International Finance. But none can blame the pandemic for this endless debt buffet. Even though Covid-19 led to the largest one-year debt increase in 2020 since World War II, a massive debt build-up had been underway for a decade before.

According to the World Bank's debt sustainability analysis, between 2011 and 2019, public debt in 65 developing countries shot up by 18% of GDP on average. These countries have high primary deficits, and the consensus view is that a serious global debt crisis is unfolding. Unlike last decade, countries cannot simply take new debt to replace old debt, and could force them with imminent defaults. And as we have seen during the 1990s Asian financial crises, and the more recent 2010 Eurozone debt crises, debt defaults are often contagious.

Worryingly, the anticipated defaults are not confined to low-income countries. With EM debt about to touch a record $100 trillion, fears about middle-income countries struggling with dues is mounting. Total EM debt is at a record high of 207% of GDP, while government debt at 64% of GDP, too is at its highest level in three decades. And here in lies the problem. The lethal combination of rising interest rates and strengthening dollar could once again trigger a sovereign debt distress.

Typically, countries borrow in US dollars or euros, and hold forex reserves to meet import payments, and sustain currency value. Unfortunately, these reserves are falling short especially with energy prices soaring. Foreign currencies, particularly the greenback, have become expensive with the US Federal Reserve and the European Central Bank raising rates.

Since 90% of the emerging market debt is dollar denominated, a stronger US currency makes repayments punitively expensive. This is precisely what has happened in Sri Lanka, whose first sovereign debt default since independence in 1948 of $35 billion launched the nation into an economic tailspin. If there were three main peaks in debt defaults prior to World War I -- 1830s, 1880s and 1930s – the past 50 years alone saw four more debt waves since 1970. Of these, the first three episodes ended with financial crises in emerging and developing economies.

The last one that began in 2010, has already witnessed the largest, fastest and most broad-based increase in debt among economies. In 2012, Greece, which became the first advanced nation since the 1960s to undergo a deep debt restructuring, isn't fully out of the woods.

INDEBTED COUNTRIES

- US most indebted country in the world with total external debt at $23.4 trillion, constituting 22.6% of total global debt as of 2021
- It's followed by the UK (9.5%), France (7%), Germany (6.7%) and Japan (4.5%)
- China and Brazil are the only two EMDEs among the top 20 indebted countries
- As per IMF, overall borrowing jumped by 28% to 256% of GDP in 2020

Public debt shot up across world

According to the World Bank's debt sustainability analysis, between 2011 and 2019, public debt in 65 developing countries shot up by 18% of GDP on average. These countries have high primary deficits

Qatar FIFA WORLD CUP FINALS 2022

Croatian fans in Doha ahead of the quadrennial bash | AFP

Issues remain even as hosts welcome world

IT is a matter of fact that over 6,500 men, some just boys, have died at work or in work-related incidents since the tournament was awarded to Qatar in December 2010 (both FIFA and Qatar dispute these numbers). Rights groups have pointed out that the numbers are misleading – a combination of shoddy record keeping, under-reporting and at times blatant disregard. Their families have received little or nothing in terms of compensation so far. It is an undeniable failure that should prompt more questioning, introspection, conversation and action.

In Qatar some of this is taking place. The country introduced broad labour reforms that were lauded by the International Labour Organisation and abolished the heinous kafala system. Qatar is no proletarian paradise. But, as the four parking lot friends pointed out... baby steps. Almost 90 per cent of Qatar's population is migrants. At least anecdotally, those who are here seem better off than those who are not. The same can hardly be said of Europe where governments have won elections on anti-migrant policies and border pushbacks that have killed over 29,000 migrants since 2014. It was Gianni Infantino's one point of clarity in a diatribe that otherwise slipped in and out of the realm of the bizarre. Which is not to say that Infantino should now be counted among the leading postcolonial thinkers of our times. Playing to the gallery is very much part of the programme. There is a FIFA election next year and Infantino needs the Global South on his side. It was also very much in line with FIFA unofficial "Shut up and Play" policy.

Express GOAL
SIDDHANTH ANEY @ DOHA

Which brings us back to Ground Zero. The fan festival is kicking off. Mexicans, Ecuadorians, Cameroonians and thousands of South Asians mingled on the streets. This is the most compact World Cup ever. Compared to the 12,000km it took to cover France's games in Russia four years ago, everything here is within a 50km radius. For those who have retained an innocent love of the game, and privileged enough to attend, the prospect of watching great football is mouthwatering. For those who come to experience the vibe at a mega event there will be an ease larger countries cannot afford. Qatar and Ecuador get the ball rolling at the Al Bayt stadium on Sunday. No host country has ever lost an opening game. But the Asian champs are playing on this stage for the first time. And Ecuador, led by Enner Valencia, will be a hard side to beat. Here's hoping Almoez Ali and his comrades find a little bit of magic and reaffirm the sentiments of our four friends from the parking lot.

Difficult for players: Dier on WC controversy

England defender Eric Dier admits his experience of the World Cup has been tarnished by the controversy surrounding Qatar. With England's opening game against Iran just two days away, Dier would usually have been quizzed about his team's World Cup prospect. But instead he, playing in his second World Cup, was peppered with questions about the host of issues involving Qatar that have overshadowed the build-up to the tournament.

QATAR, ECUADOR FACE OFF TODAY

"TODAY I have strong feelings. Today I feel Qatari. Today I feel Arab. Today I feel African. Today I feel gay. Today I feel disabled. Today I feel a migrant worker," he said. "I feel this, all this, because what I've been seeing and what I've been told, since I don't read, otherwise I would be depressed, I think."

On Sunday hosts Qatar and Ecuador play the first game of the tournament and focus will shift to the football, like Infantino wants. But the conversations, and the movements, that have been sparked will continue...

PROBABLE LINE-UPS

Estupinan	Miguel

Cifuentes	Hatem

Match of the Day

Hosts Qatar open the World Cup with a clash against Ecuador. A look at the game...

A COACH WHO KNOWS THE SYSTEM WELL

Spain's Felix Sanchez, who honed his craft at Barcelona's La Masia, has spent a lot of time in Qatar since 2006, first training the kids before taking over the reigns of the senior team. He was coach when he helped Qatar to the Asian Cup in 2019, their first-ever (they beat South Korea and Japan en route).

PLAYING IN OTHER EVENTS TO GET READY

The Qatar side has basically been preparing for this moment since December 2010. Over the last few months, they have played as a guest team in the Copa America. They also played in a number of friendlies against European opposition. Even if competitive fixtures have been hard to come by, they did beat Egypt on penalties to finish third at the Arab Cup last year.

IMPETUS ON A STURDY BACKLINE

Their last (most recent first) five results reads: 0-0, 0-0, 0-0, 1-0, 0-0. That itself says what their strong point is: defensive organisation. Their other great strengths are physicality and pace. They have already surprised World Cup regulars Colombia and Chile in the South American qualifying stage.

BRIGHTON'S BEST

Fans of the English Premier League will immediately identify with Ecuador because of the presence of midfielder Moises Caicedo and full-back Pervis Estupinan. Caicedo will sit in front of the back four while Estupinan isnt shy of bombing on.

KEY MEN

AKRAM AFIF

A key attacking outlet for the hosts. Brings a lot of energy in the way he presses and will attract some attention. Spent a sizable portion of his youth career at Sevilla. Has been banging in the goals for club side Al Sadd.

MOISES CAICEDO

The heartbeat of the side even though he's just 21. What makes his so good is he isn't just a ball-winner but can recycle possession and is mobile. Has already played 25 games for his country.

Fans 'can survive' without beer

FIFA chief Gianni Infantino said that World Cup fans can survive for three hours a day without beer after sales were banned around stadiums. "I think personally if for three hours a day you cannot drink a beer, you will survive," he told his opening press conference in Doha. "The same applies in France, Spain, Scotland." World Cup chiefs on Friday banned beer sales around stadiums in Qatar in a stunning U-turn, just 48 hours before Sunday's kick-off.

GAME OF SKILLS

SWAROOP SWAMINATHAN @ Chennai

CONTRARY to popular perception, sport and geopolitics are perfect bedfellows, a romance forged in steel. You can even trace the overarching influence of government and politics in the context of the men's football World Cup. This much is evident right from 1934 when Italy hosted it. Leader Benito Mussolini saw the event as a perfect vehicle to promote his regime. Mussolini got what he wanted as Italy won the competition. The Maracana, built for the express purpose for the World Cup in 1950, was meant to portray a more modern Brazil. Argentina in 1978 was played under the totalitarian regime of Jorge Videla. Videla, according to historic accounts, even hired an American PR firm to spread propaganda (activists wanted teams to boycott the event and a few players ended up not going). West Germany's triumph in the final at Italia 1990 was dressed up as a win for a more forward-looking Germany less than a year after the fall of the Berlin Wall. In the last three decades, globalisation had a big role as the World Cup moved from North America to Asia to Africa.

The event's latest pitstop is Qatar, another example of politics' outsized influence in sport. The event itself is a leap into the unknown. A winter World Cup. Coaches not having a month to work with the players. No chance for a period of rest for aching limbs. A tournament that will largely be played in temperatures exceeding 30*c, with humidity over 60%. There are two positives. No big travel involved and players will perhaps face no problems with respect to conditioning as they have been playing highly competitive games till last weekend.

With the caveat of the unknown, the competition could see a South American winner for the first time since 2002. Apart from the full-backs, Brazil have brought a stacked squad to Qatar. They haven't lost in a while and the players are familiar with the system coach Tite employs. What really works for them is the marriage of quality with quantity in the forward line.

In 2022, their aggregate score is 27-3 and have scored three or more goals six times in eight games. With five of their starting front six likely to be Neymar, Richarlison, Vini Jr, Raphinha and Lucas Pacqueta, they will not be short of goals or in creating chances. The one chink in their armour is nobody knows if they can replicate this success against elite European opposition. They have faced one European nation in the last four years. That's not great preparation if you have been eliminated by European nations (France in 2006, Netherlands in 2010, Germany in 2014 and Belgium in 2018) in the last four World Cups. In this context, their two group-stage games against two middle-tier European countries is of added importance.

The second favourite to win the World Cup in many people's eyes, Argentina, don't have a European problem. Their last game against European opposition was versus current champions Italy and Argentina stomped over them 3-0 in the Finalissima. They haven't lost since 2019 and the vibe is hard to miss. That Copa America win in 2021 has lifted the tension from Lionel Messi & Co. It has given them a new lease of life and it's showing in the way they are playing. Earlier, they were playing on emotion, these days there is a joie de vivre. Messi is orchestrating proceedings in a deeper role. The emergence of Lautaro Martinez in the front and Emi Martinez as goalkeeper as made them a more sturdy outfit. They have multiple avenues to score and the team is a perfect blend of youth and experience. Like their neighbours, though, the one possible weakness is in the full-back area.

Argentina's conquerors in 2018, France, are the European nation most primed to win again. To be honest, if you have Kylian Mbappe in your side, you tend to win more than you lose. However, they have had a troubled build-up. Paul Pogba and N'Golo Kante are out while both Raphael Varane and Karim Benzema are nursing niggles. The midfield will likely be marshalled by youngsters, who might find the pressure nauseating. There is also the feeling that coach Didier Deschamps is cautious and sets his teams up to not lose. A friendly group, though, allows the team to grow into the tournament.

Two other European teams who will look to do the same are Germany and Spain. Both of them are drawn in the same group. They possess some of the best young players and play in a very modern way, high-pressing, full-backs acting as auxiliary midfielders and forwards who link up the play. Both of them, though, suffer from a common problem. The absence of a reliable, goal-scoring No. 9.

Portugal have one of those in Cristiano Ronaldo but will he remain effective? A squad brimming with talent, the 2016 Euro champions have more than an outside chance of winning a first World gong but much of it depends on if there is an appetite to bench Ronaldo, who comes into the Cup on the back of an legacy-tearing interview. He has burned his bridges with Manchester United and it could have immediate repurcussions with the likes of teammate Bruno Fernandes too.

WC likely to draw bets over billion dollars

PARIS: Betting turnover on the World Cup will be in the billions of dollars — and bookmakers fear a big payout if Gareth Southgate's England side finally win the trophy after a 56-year wait. The World Cup generates huge interest from punters, in stark contrast to the other quadrennial global sporting showpiece, the Olympics, which "barely causes a ripple", a leading English bookmaker told a news agency. Punters will cast their eyes over Lionel Messi, Cristiano Ronaldo and Kylian Mbappe on football's greatest stage in Qatar from Sunday and beat a path to the doors of bookmakers round the world or bet online. The Olympics may attract a global television audience to compare to the World Cup but with 32 different sports it does not whet the appetite of the betting public. "The World Cup is by far the biggest betting event we see, with no comparison to the Olympics, which barely causes a ripple amongst punters," David Stevens, head of public relations at Coral bookmakers, said.

Manika returns with historic bronze medal

The world number 44 defeated Hayata 4-2 (11-6, 6-11, 11-7, 12-10, 4-11, 11-2) to achieve the incredible feat. Besides the historic bronze, Manika will also carry home USD 10,000 for her efforts.
